Hijacker killed
QUITO — An alert army officer slipped aboard a commandeered Ecuadorian Airlines plane Tuesday and shot and killed a man who authorities said tried to extort $40,000 ransom with explosives. The hijacker, who was not immediately identified, ordered the Guayaquil-bound plane to return to Quito about 2:30 p.m. 3:30 p.m. EDT. When the plane landed, army paratroopers quickly moved in and surrounded it, spokesmen said. They said the hijacker ordered a parachute brought on board and $40,000, which he later reduced to $20,000.

Lower drinking age considered
HARRISBURG — The Senate Law and Order Committee reported to the Senate floor Tuesday a bill that would lower the drinking age from 21 to 18. Sen. Thomas McCreesh, D-Philadelphia, said an amendment that would have lowered the age for beer only to 18 was defeated in committee. McCreesh, chairman of the Law and Order Committee, said he is not sure whether or not enough senators will vote for the bill in its present form. He would not rule out an attempt to amend the bill from the floor to lower the drinking age to 18 for beer only.

Ambulance crash kills 5
DANVILLE, Va. — Five persons were killed Tuesday when an ambulance on an emergency run crashed into an oil tank truck and the two vehicles careened into a power station, causing a transformer to explode. Would-be rescuers had to wait for nearly two hours while the wreckage cooled before removing the bodies of two ambulance attendants and two women in the ambulance heading for a hospital. The fifth victim was identified as Earnest Sherrin, 47, of South Boston, Va., driver of the fuel truck.

Auto safety device fails
DETROIT — An air bag failed to fire during a demonstration in Detroit that was supposed to show the "life-saving potential" of air bags in automobiles. Officials said they weren't immediately able to determine the cause of the failure but said they suspected it was a failure in the wiring mechanism of the test car.

Military fund cut voted
WASHINGTON — The Senate Foreign Relations Committee voted Tuesday to cut off funds for U.S. military forces in South Vietnam after Aug. 31. The committee adopted by voice vote a tough antiwar amendment by Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield as it approved a $1.7 billion foreign aid bill. The Mansfield proposal already was awaiting action in the Senate as an amendment to the pending State Department authorization bill.

Blacks attack new busing bill

HARRISBURG (UPI) — The state House Tuesday passed a bill requiring a parent's permission for his child to be bused to school. Black legislators said the bill, which passed 117-66, was designed to end busing to achieve racial balance in the schools. But Rep. Charles Caputo, D-Allegheny, the sponsor, said the bill "has no racial overtones."

Senators clear vote on busing

WASHINGTON (UPI) — On a 44-26 vote, the Senate Tuesday defeated an effort to return a compromise antibusing bill to a conference with the House, paving the way for congressional approval of the controversial measure. The action came on an $18.5 billion, three-year aid to higher education measure, into which House-Senate conferees wrote antibusing language that was stronger than the original Senate bill, but weaker than the House measure. Sen. Robert P. Griffin, R-Mich., sought to return the measure to conference with instructions to accept the original House busing language. Defeat of the Griffin move, which technically came with Senate approval to table, or kill his motion, cleared the way for the Senate to complete debate and vote on the compromise bill.

MOSCOW (UPI) — After nearly seven hours of negotiations Tuesday, President Nixon and Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev appeared ready to conclude agreements on space, trade and a breakthrough limitation on their arsenals of strategic nuclear weapons. At the end of the first full day of the Moscow summit, authoritative American sources disclosed a scenario of expected pact signings reaching a climax on Friday with initialing of a long-sought preliminary accord providing for mutual controls on offensive and defense missiles. These sources said the two leaders were expected to sign an agreement today to attempt to dock a spacecraft flown by three American astronauts with three Soviet cosmonauts aboard a Salyut space laboratory in earth orbit. The target date would be June, 1975. On Thursday, it was reported, the two sides were expected to sign a new trade agreement, expanding each country's exports to the other beyond the combined total of $220 million last year. An agreement would imply some settlement had been reached in deadlocked negotiations over Russia's World War II Lend Lease debt to the United States. The joint space venture agreement would fulfill the spirit of an appeal Nixon made to the Soviet people nearly 13 years ago when, during a Moscow visit as Dwight D. Eisenhower's vice president, he urged his Russian broadcast audience: "Let us go to the moon together." As envisioned by Soviet-American planners who have already met in Houston and Moscow, the American astronauts would join the Russian spacemen in earth orbit, dock their craft the following day and spend the next 56 hours circling the earth together. But the prospective arms control agreement, tentatively set for signing on Friday according to officials of both sides, would easily be the major triumph to cap the first Soviet visit by a peacetime U.S. President. In Helsinki, an Eastern source at the arms control talks said U.S. and Soviet negotiators had entered a "very, very secret" stage in their 2 1/2 years of bargaining over the form of an initial agreement. Although details of the prospective pact were sketchy, American officials said it would include restraints on submarine-launched and bomber-delivered offensive missiles as well as defensive antiballistic missiles (ABMs). Word of the initial agreement, the culmination of secret and exceedingly complex bargaining in Helsinki and Vienna that began in November, 1969, came from both Soviet and American sources toward the end of the first full day of the Moscow summit. In the course of the day, Nixon and Brezhnev, general secretary of the Soviet Communist party, quickly disposed of two agreements calling for Soviet-American cooperation in the fight against cancer, heart disease and pollution. The agreements were signed at dusk amid champagne toasts in the Kremlin's Vladimir Hall. Nixon and Brezhnev met for two hours with their full delegations at 11 a.m. in the paneled, silk-walled Catherine Hall, broke for lunch, and then met privately for two more hours in late afternoon. Then, after the signing of the health and environmental accords, they held an unscheduled evening meeting alone that lasted for two hours. Sources close to the summit talks reported that during the afternoon and evening sessions, virtually alone except for interpreters and an occasional aide, Nixon and Brezhnev zeroed in on arms control, the toughest issue they had agreed to tackle. Parallel talks were under way concerning ways to bolster Soviet-American trade. One American source reported that, at least during the mid-day session, the word "Vietnam" was not even mentioned.

Charges carry death penalty

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Arthur Herman Bremer, a sandyhaired Milwaukee busboy, was indicted by federal and Maryland grand juries Tuesday on charges resulting from the attempted May 15, assassination of Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace. A Prince Georges County grand jury charged Bremer, 21, with four counts of attempted murder, in the wounding of Wallace, a Secret Service agent, an Alabama bodyguard and a woman at a shopping center rally in Laurel, Md. Each count carries a maximum penalty of death by electrocution. The four-count federal indictment, returned in Baltimore, charged Bremer with violating the 1968 Civil Rights Act, which prohibits the injury or intimidation of candidates for elective office. Ironically, Wallace was a bitter opponent of the 1968 federal statute. Other federal counts returned by a grand jury of nine women and 11 men charged Bremer with using a dangerous weapon to assault Secret Service agent Nicholas J. Zarvos, interstate transportation of a firearm with intent to shoot Wallace, and using a .38 caliber revolver to wound the Alabama governor. Bremer, arrested moments after the shooting, was being held under tight security at the Baltimore County jail in suburban Towson. He will be arraigned at 10 a.m. today before District U.S. Chief Judge Edward S. Northrup. U.S. Marshal C.A. Butler refused comment on when and how Bremer would be brought to the federal court building here for the arraignment. "There will be adequate security precautions taken," Butler said. The state grand jury, meeting in Upper Marlboro, also returned other felony charges of assault with intent to murder and assault with intent to maim against Bremer. Maximum penalties on each charge are 10 years in prison and/or $10,000 in fines.

Agrees with Gov. Cahill

By ANDREA B. STERN

STROUDSBURG — Delaware Gov. Russell W. Peterson is supporting New Jersey Gov. William T. Cahill's reluctance to approve the proposed Tocks Island Dam. Peterson's stand was outlined in a letter to Harold Lockwood, chairman of the Save the Delaware Coalition (SDC) and in response to an appeal from the environmentalist group that Delaware reconsider its Tocks stand "in view of serious environmental and economic impacts." "You apparently have been misinformed on my position regarding the Tocks Island Dam," Peterson wrote. "At the recent meeting of the Delaware River Basin Commission (DRBC) in Washington, I fully supported Gov. Cahill's reluctance to approve the project. "Concern over its environmental impact was among the concerns he (Cahill) cited for his position. In view of Delaware's strong concern with preserving its environment — our Coastal Zone Act is one example — I understand and share Gov. Cahill's concern." The act referred to by Peterson was passed by the Delaware legislature last June to protect the state's coastal area from industrial pollution. A spokesman in Peterson's office confirmed his position, noting, "He is waiting for further fact finding on environmental and economic fronts." He disclosed Delaware does not intend to appoint a special committee to investigate and re-evaluate the Tocks project as is the case with New Jersey which has announced a firm position will be taken by the end of the summer.

Senate takes welfare rule

HARRISBURG (UPI) — The state Senate Tuesday approved a measure that would give the legislature full sway over the welfare system. The vote was 33-13 with 10 Democrats and 23 Republicans voting for it. Introduced by maverick Democratic senators Thomas Nolan of Allegheny County and William Duffield of Fayette County, the measure was similar to one passed in the House last week. The Senate measure was an amendment to a bill that will not come up for a vote in that chamber until at least next week. The House and Senate measures were attached to different bills. Many legislators said they simply wanted to "put the Welfare Department on notice" that they want reform. The legislature Monday passed an unpopular bill appropriating an extra $54 million to keep the public assistance program alive. But Senate Majority Leader Thomas Lamb, D-Allegheny, warned the measure may find its way into law. He said Gov. Milton J. Shapp threatened to sign the bill if it reaches his desk. The governor's office refused to confirm or deny Lamb's report. Many legislators said they needed to pass the measure to show their interest in welfare reform. The Senate Monday approved an unpopular bill appropriating an extra $54 million to keep the public assistance program alive. The measure gives the legislature the right to rule on all existing and future regulations written by the Public Welfare Department. All departments currently write their own regulations to implement the laws. "I believe that many of us have found ourselves in considerable difficulty because we have delegated legislative authority to agencies on this bill," said Sen. Stanley Stroup, R-Bedford. "Then, we found that they have overstepped their bounds. We are taking a step here against that." Lamb spoke against the bill. He indicated he had talked to the governor earlier in the day. "If the legislature wants to pull down upon itself this monumental headache and if the bill comes to his desk, he'll sign it," Lamb said. Shapp earlier warned the measure was "possibly unconstitutional" and might disqualify the state for more than $600 million which the federal government contributes to the state welfare program. Lamb echoed that warning. "We may be running afoul of the federal government and find the federal contribution for welfare will be no longer forthcoming," he said.

McGovern wins R.I. primary

United Press International
George S. McGovern handily defeated Hubert H. Humphrey in Rhode Island's presidential primary Tuesday night and looked for a "smashing victory" in Oregon as the primary season headed for its June 6 California climax. Returns from 62 per cent of Rhode Island's precincts showed McGovern piling up nearly a two-to-one margin over Humphrey in the Democratic column. He also hoped for a clean majority in Oregon's crowded field — the only primary in which the name of Sen. Edward M. Kennedy is on the ballot — to give him momentum for the crucial winner-take-all California showdown. The winner there will get 271 of the 1,509 delegate votes needed to win the nomination at the Democratic national convention. He also will pick up valuable momentum in the contest for New York's 278 delegates to be chosen June 20. Oregon's polls were open until 11 p.m. EDT. In Rhode Island, McGovern at 10:30 p.m. EDT was winning with 42 per cent of the vote to 22 per cent for Humphrey, and 18 per cent for Edmund S. Muskie, who has given up competing in the primaries. George C. Wallace, who ran a late-start television campaign after he was partially paralyzed in an assassination attempt, was getting 15 per cent. Counting Rhode Island's 34 delegates, McGovern at that point had a total of 473 — plus 18 leaning toward him. He led the field in delegate commitments, followed by Wallace, Humphrey and Muskie. Rhode Island's was the fourth primary won by McGovern. His earlier victories came in Wisconsin, Massachusetts and Nebraska. In non-presidential primary Tuesday, in Kentucky, former GOP Gov. Louie B. Nunn and Democratic state Sen. Walter "Dee" Huddleston easily won nominations for the U.S. Senate seat to be vacated by Sen. John Sherman Cooper, 69, a Republican who has held it for 20 years.

What a place to play ball
MOSCOW (UPI) — Col. Ralph D. Albertazzi said all he asked for was a little field where he and the rest of President Nixon's personal flight crew could play some softball and work out. "They gave us the whole 103,000-seat Lenin stadium," said Albertazzi, the pilot of the President's jet, "The Spirit of '76." "We were just looking for a place for a couple of hours a day where we could work out — a little soccer field somewhere," he said. He and 15 other Americans, half the total crew of the president's plane and back-up aircraft, showed up to exercise Tuesday, he said. "We were the only ones in the place."

O'Brien visits Gov. Wallace

SILVER SPRING, Md. (UPI) — National Democratic Chairman Lawrence F. O'Brien visited the partially paralyzed George C. Wallace Tuesday, pronounced him a serious presidential candidate and said he looked forward to seeing him at the national convention at Miami Beach in July.

"I would say that any candidate that has several hundred delegates is a serious candidate," O'Brien told reporters after visiting the Alabama governor, who was wounded in an assassination attempt eight days ago.

"The governor told me he would be down there at Miami Beach," O'Brien said. "He fully expects to be. I told him we would be looking forward to it and certainly we will have the welcome mat out for him."

Wallace, who trails only Sen. George S. McGovern, D-S.D., in convention delegate votes, is paralyzed from the waist down by a .38 caliber bullet lodged against his spine. But he has shown some involuntary muscle movement in his feet. Doctors plan to remove the bullet, with the hope that the paralysis will eventually be eliminated, but have set no date for the operation.

O'Brien said he was impressed with Wallace's "optimism and downright enthusiasm."

"If it were not for the circumstances, our discussion was carried on in a way it would have been carried on in a living room or a hotel back in Washington," said O'Brien. "It was full, complete, and I enjoyed the visit because he had some wonderful comments to make on a variety of subjects which I will keep to myself."

Asked if the paralysis would affect Wallace's campaign, O'Brien replied, "I certainly did not get the impression that he would be inactive as a campaigner. In talking to the governor at some length, I was talking to a man I feel is an active campaigner."

Wallace had expressed some doubt that the Democrats would give him adequate facilities at Miami Beach, but O'Brien said Tuesday, "His accommodations are the best available... and he expressed great pleasure with the accommodations today."

Tuesday's medical bulletin issued by doctors at Holy Cross Hospital said Wallace would be spending more time out of bed for physical therapy.

"Over the past 24 hours, the neurologic status of the lower extremities has been essentially unchanged," the bulletin said.

Wallace's accused assailant, Arthur Herman Bremer, was indicted Tuesday on attempted murder charges by a Maryland grand jury and by a federal grand jury on charges of attacking a person seeking a federal office.

Bombing raids increase as enemy mounts assaults

SAIGON (UPI) — Communists attacked on three fronts Tuesday, showing little indication of slowing down the 54-day-old offensive, and the United States retaliated with sharply increased bombing raids in North Vietnam.

Observers said the triple probes were strikingly similar to Communist tactics used at Quang Tri shortly before the main attack on the city.

The Communists inflicted heavy losses against the South Vietnamese in the Central Highlands in a series of hit-and-run attacks but made little headway in fierce fighting at An Loc and Hue.

The U.S. command said air raids over the north jumped to an average of 335 per day—the heaviest since President Nixon ordered a resumption of the bombing. American warplanes heavily damaged a Hanoi power transformer and attacked bridges, fuel pipelines and surface-to-air missile sites.

A command spokesman said air raids over the north have apparently done heavy damage to the North Vietnamese air defense system. Only 12 SAMs per day were fired at U.S. planes in the last eight days compared to more than 30 per day at the beginning of the raids.

However, intelligence sources also reported SAM sites were being set up north of Hue to defend against allied planes in an expected attack.

In other developments: —Vice Adm. James L. Holloway III took command of the U.S. 7th Fleet operating off the Vietnam coast from Vice Adm. William P. Mack in a routine change of command exercise.

—Three Americans were reported wounded by Communist fire Monday at the Konlum airfield in the Central Highlands.

—Communist gunners lobbed 20 rounds of 82mm mortars into the American base at Phu Bai near Hue but no casualties were reported. There are about 2,000 Americans stationed at the base.

—South Vietnamese troops captured two Soviet-made SA7 Strella heat-seeking missiles. The missiles can be fired by one man and have been very effective against allied aircraft on the northern front.

—American pilots reported destroying two helicopters parked in Communist-held territory near Quang Tri. A spokesman said he did not know whose helicopters they were but they appeared intact and were inside Communist lines.

Revenue-sharing bill faces stiff opposition

WASHINGTON (UPI) — House leaders said Tuesday that President Nixon's revenue-sharing bill was in trouble and delayed a vote on it until Nixon gets home from Russia. They hinted they may have to revise it to make sure it passes.

The leaders said they need Nixon's help to get Republican support and they did not want to risk a House vote until the President returns.

Nixon is due back June 1. Under the new timetable, the bill, one of his key domestic planks, will not come up in the House before the week of June 5.

Debate on the bill was to have started today. But Speaker Carl Albert, D-Okla., announced the postponement shortly after the House Rules Committee, on a tight 8 to 7 vote, approved a no-amendment or "gag" rule that the leaders had said was needed to protect the bill against crippling change.

$551,500 estate left by Hoover

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former FBI director J. Edgar Hoover left an estate of $551,500, willed most of it to his longtime friend and right-hand man, Clyde A. Tolson, and stipulated he should take care of Hoover's two dogs.

Hoover's will was filed for probate in U.S. District Court last week and records showed that Tolson inherited Hoover's $100,000 house with its antique furnishings and oil and gas leases in Texas and Louisiana valued at about $125,000.

The Washington Post reported that Tolson, 72-year-old former associate director of the FBI under Hoover, was said to have already moved out of his apartment and into the house Hoover left him. The newspaper said Tolson gave that address as his own in court records.

Tolson resigned from the FBI the day after Hoover's death, May 10, from a heart attack at age 77. Tolson had been recruited into the FBI by Hoover in 1928 and through the years the two men, both bachelors, had become very close friends.

The will provided nothing for Hoover's four nieces and two nephews — the children of his deceased sister and brother, but it did ask that Tolson "keep, or arrange for a good home or homes for my two dogs."

Both Hoover's dogs were Cain Terriers, one fairly old and the other relatively young.

Hoover's personal property was estimated at $326,500, made up of $122,000 in stocks, $84,000 in cash in banks and loan associations, $45,000 in insurance, $18,000 in unpaid salary and annual government leave, $7,500 in household effects, and $5,000 in jewelry.

Hoover left seven other persons something from his estate, including $5,000 for Helen W. Gandy, his longtime secretary; $2,000 and personal clothing for his chauffeur; $3,000 to his housekeeper; and part of his personal clothing to an FBI messenger. He also left a small star sapphire ring to one namesake, John Edgar Nichols of Leesburg, Va., and a platinum watch and two pair of cuff links to another namesake, John Edgar Ruch.

Residents forced to evacuate

INDIANA, Pa. (UPI) — A tank truck carrying 6,000 gallons of flammable methyl-ethyl gasoline overturned near the intersection of Routes 85-119 in nearby Home Tuesday, forcing the temporary evacuation of some residents.

State Police righted the truck and cleared the intersection after another tanker drove to the scene and drained the fuel from the overturned vehicle.

The driver of the overturned truck, Alexander Gawron of East Hanover, N.J., was hospitalized at Indiana with undetermined injuries. The cause of the accident was not immediately known.

Land conservancy group urged for N.E. Penna.

WILKES-BARRE — John C. Whetzel, president of the Western Pennsylvania Conservancy, addressed a gathering of citizens interested in forming a Northeastern Pennsylvania Conservancy at a meeting held in May at the Community Center of Pomeroy's Department Store in the Wyoming Valley Mall, Wilkes-Barre.

Representatives from ten counties were in attendance — from the Endless Mountains, Pocono Mountains, and the Anthracite Area Counties.

Citing interest over the last several years in formulating a conservancy, Howard J. Grossman noted in introductory remarks that organizational efforts for a Northeastern Pennsylvania Conservancy, including consideration of by-laws, has been underway for several months. Grossman is executive director of the Economic Development Council of Northeastern Pennsylvania (EDCNP), an organization which serves Carbon, Lackawanna, Luzerne, Monroe, Pike, Schuylkill and Wayne Counties and which has been active in supporting the conservancy concept.

The EDCNP staff prepared a report on the concept and its use in Northeastern Pennsylvania and the Council's Executive Committee endorsed efforts to promote the concept during late 1971. Several environmental groups have joined in the effort.

Grossman also stated that "central to the Northeastern Pennsylvania Conservancy concept is the need to develop some form of land-bank which would protect and enhance the region's scenic and unique natural areas."

Whetzel spoke on the Western Pennsylvania Conservancy's program of acquiring and preserving land for the common use of all people, of the importance of educational programs that teach conservation of water, land and life systems, and of services to help individuals and groups to cope with the complex problems of upgrading the environment.

"The chief purpose of a conservancy," Whetzel said, "is to conserve the land. In preserving open space and unique natural land areas, the conservancy acts as a catalyst and acquisition agent, working in close cooperation with government in its role as holder and manager of the land."

Through this policy, which the Northeastern Pennsylvania Conservancy seeks to emulate, Whetzel indicated that the Western Pennsylvania Conservancy "saved" 45,000 acres. 27,000 acres have been turned over to the government and another 18,000 acres are owned by the Conservancy.

Northampton Demo chairman named

EASTON — Atty. Justice D. Jiruliano, Bethlehem Democratic city chairman for the past nine years, has been elected Northampton County Democratic chairman.

He succeeds Martin J. Bechtel, who left the county post to become Easton city Democratic chairman. Jiruliano, 67, defeated Carl Meixner, 47, of Moore Township, who is the county superintendent of highways and an appointee of Gov. Milton Shapp.

The vote, cast in the courthouse in Easton, was 127 for Jiruliano to 95 for Meixner. In the preliminary campaigning, the election was considered a contest between county organization forces and appointees of the governor.

In the other phase of the election, Jeanette Houck of Plainfield Township, was elected vice chairman. She succeeds Mabel Meixell of Bethlehem, who declined the nomination. Jiruliano appointed Easton Atty. Arnold Falk as treasurer and Louise Bethman of Pen Argyl as secretary.

With Jiruliano's election, the post of city chairman is being sought by five candidates. The successor to him will be selected when the Bethlehem city committee meets in the Hungarian Catholic Club Thursday.

Death thoughts enhance life

Paradoxical thought for today: If people thought more about death, life would become more valuable.

You don't think so? Try it. Think about what it feels like to die. Granted, there isn't much to go on (no one yet has returned from the grave to tell us what it's like) but envision, if you will, how it feels to have life ebbing away, or dashed out in a single, violent moment.

A vivid realization of what it is like to die, to have life come to an end, just might make us more reverent of life itself. It might make us more appreciative of how delicious each breath of air can be, how joyful it is to look forward to the next moment and the surprises it might bring.

There are too many people in this world who don't think of that; either that, or they cannot translate their personal feelings into the feelings of others. Because violence mounts in our nation and the world; people continue to take other people's lives with a careless abandon.

If we are to become less violence-prone, less warlike (true lovers of peace, as it were) we must respect life far more than we do now. It is the old Golden Rule principle again. How would you like to have your being blasted into fragments by a terrorists' bomb? How would you like to have your life snuffed out by a quick bullet?

All over the world — in Indochina, the Mideast, Ulster, New York City, any place you can name — people put other people to death because some people stand in the way of beliefs and ideologies. And is a belief worth a human life? A life exactly like yours, with the same hopes and aspirations, the same delights in just walking through the world, breathing in its air and savoring of its sights?

Soldiers of an opposing army are not tin soldiers, although soldiers tend to look at it that way (that's called a defense mechanism). People of one belief are not just unfeeling cyphers opposing our beliefs; they are human beings.

Until we learn that lesson, people will continue to die for essentially needless causes. The only true cause is the cause of humanity. And we fear that, unless people the world over think more of death and feel a greater kinship, a greater intimacy with other people, life will continue to suffer and be snuffed out.

And, in the final analysis, to no end whatsoever but for the ironic immortalization of man as the most blood-thirsty creature in existence.

No-fault questions

From the comments made by local experts, no-fault insurance proponents have a lot of explaining to do.

The concept is not a new one, but its implementation is, with only Massachusetts having had any extensive experience with the pros and cons of the plan. For that reason, it is desirable that our insurance commissioner, Herbert S. Denenberg, explain the concept in more concrete terms before the Assembly acts on it.

How does no-fault affect the driver when he is in another state that does not have such a plan? What is the cost of such a program when insurance is not mandatory? (It is in Massachusetts). Where is the cutoff line between claims that are settled between the insurer and the victim, and those that may be brought to court?

Denenberg may think these questions answered, but from comments gathered in interviews with local insurance salesmen, we don't think so.

Enacting a no-fault insurance plan is a momentous step to take. It should not be done until all its ramifications are fully probed. We feel the plan has considerable merit. We do not agree, for example, with one man who complained that a negligent driver who injures others may collect more than those he has injured through his negligence.

What does it matter who was at fault? The person whose medical needs are greatest should receive the greatest amount. Why penalize him and his family because he was at fault? Especially since he has paid for the coverage.

But that question is an ethical one. Other questions are practical ones, and Denenberg ought to get busy and answer them before we find ourselves saddled with a plan that is not only unworkable, but discriminatory as well.

'Funny, you don't look Democratic'

HARRISBURG — Whatever happened to...

Gov. Milton Shapp has had in his possession since March 15 the most complete study of the operation of the state ever undertaken or prepared.

The report, which was three months in the making, includes suggestions which could save Keystone State taxpayers more than $522 million in state funds alone if they were to be implemented.

If you haven't heard much about the report since it was officially presented to the Governor, it's because the suggestions which are being implemented don't have the political or public relations impact individually that the entire report had as a whole.

Suggestions implemented
But this column decided to check into the thing and found that more than $73 million worth of suggestions have either been implemented or will be implemented in the very near future — quite a bit more than the 10 per cent which the chairman of the review committee said could be expected in the first year after the report was issued.

In all, 66 suggestions covering virtually every department and agency under the jurisdiction of the Governor, were worked into the 1972-73 budget.

Along with the suggestion and the amount of money it would either cost or save, the Review Committee outlined the action required to implement it. Some of the suggestions could be put into effect immediately through administrative action, but many of the suggestions must take a much longer route through the Legislature and into law.

The governor's budget breaks the suggestions down into two areas; additional revenue and expenditure savings. The additional revenue section accounts for more than $21 million and the rest of the $73 million falls into the expenditure savings category.

The additional revenue proposals range from a high of $10.5 million from the collection

The Pennsylvania Story

Operation study implemented

of delinquent accounts in the Justice Department down to an estimated $50,000 a year income from admission tax on closed circuit television events administered by the Department of State.

Other proposals include the increase of fees for non-motor vehicle licenses which would net the state approximately $3.6 million and the reduction of fees paid to cigarette tax agents which is estimated to net $3 million.

The savings proposals placed in the budget represent virtually every department in the state. The largest area of savings will take place in the Department of Public Welfare with proposals for the saving of more than $37 million. The majority of this money comes from just two proposals.

The institution of a pre- and post-admission review process for inpatient hospital care and contract of medical assistance claims processing and utilization review will save an estimated $20 million, while the initiation of more thorough eligibility determination can save the Commonwealth about $10 million.

The second highest departmental savings is forecast for the Department of Transportation, $12 million. Other departmental savings totals budgeted are: Agriculture, $21,000; Civil Defense, $30,000; Commerce, $1.04 million; Community Affairs, $10,000; Education, $703,000; Environmental Resources, $54,000; Health, $89,000; Insurance, $96,000; Justice, $130,000; Labor and Industry, $235,000; Military Affairs, $48,000; Board of Probation and Parole, $150,000; Revenue, $30,000 and State Police, $159,000.

If these proposals are an indication of the speed with which the Review of Management Report is to be implemented, Governor Shapp looks like he will be heading toward keeping his campaign promise to run the Commonwealth like a business.

This is just a start, but a good healthy start toward instituting sound management techniques in the operation of state government.

Wallace shooting

When a prominent political figure is assassinated, or when, as in the case of George Wallace, there has been a close call, the impulse seems to be powerful either to psychologize or moralize. The commentator concludes, more or less instantly, that the assassin is psychologically disturbed; or else he deplores the violence of American life and, perhaps, mounts the platform for gun registration.

I suppose it is natural to reach for the psychoanalytic approach. To say an assassin is crazy becomes a way of not thinking about him, and, above all, distancing him. Oswald, Sirhan, Bremer — no, they are not like the rest of us. To be sure, this approach does not easily harmonize with the America-is-a-violent-country thesis.

Assassinations analyzed
Both approaches tend to be unsatisfactory; and, while the insanity explanation is elastic and debatable, and the violence-of-America stuff so generalized as to be useless, most of the prominent assassinations have had specific, identifiable political content.

We hear a great deal about Lee Harvey Oswald as a loner, a neurotic and so on. But it is quite clear on the evidence of the Warren Commission — though not stressed in its summary of its findings — that he was a devoted follower of Fidel Castro. He listened to radio Havana nightly on his shortwave radio. He distributed Castro literature. And John F. Kennedy was perceived by Oswald as a threat to Castro. Shortly before his assassination, Kennedy had made a powerful anti-Castro speech, which received a big play in the Dallas papers. Furthermore, Oswald had toyed with the idea of assassinating Richard Nixon, and did try to shoot Major General Edwin Walker, after they had made anti-Castro speeches.

We do not think of those who attempted to assassinate Hitler as on that account insane. Oswald practiced marksmanship. He was cool in his escape. That he was crazy is at best dubious, but that he was a political fanatic is certain.

Similarly, Sirhan Sirhan may not be crazy. He conceived of himself as an Arab Patriot. His own family had been displaced from its ancestral home on the West Bank.

Bremer a third worlder
We don't know much yet about Arthur Bremer, but before the psychologizers and moralizers take over completely I would like to point out that already there is evidence of Third Worldism.

In a Bremer notebook were sentiments like the following: "I am part of the world. I am one three-billionth of the world's history today. My blood is black. My country is of thee, sweet land of bigotry." And there is evidence of political hatred for George Wallace.

Sewerage action needed

In retrospect

By Bert Walter

Residents and taxpayers of Monroe County are being deceived by a barrage of criticism — primarily from the Monroe County Commissioners — of the multi-million dollar sewerage proposal plan drawn by the Delaware River Basin Commission.

The commissioners are being very antagonistic over the sewerage plan. But they only argue against its cost and practicality.

The commissioners are ignoring the need for such a system — or any type of county-wide system. The commissioners won't even think about this. They hide this fact behind the barrage of arguments against the DRBC proposal, throwing a smoke screen over the real problem: pollution in Monroe County.

The commissioners are remiss in their duties for not attacking the problem head on.

They don't feel the DRBC plan is feasible and say it is too costly. Fine. But come up with something else.

We are told by commissioners and planning commission members that the DRBC sewerage plan would prevent the Tocks Island Reservoir from being polluted.

Yes, it would. But the fact the commissioners never have brought out is that it would provide sewerage treatment for all of eastern Monroe County.

This is one of the reasons that DRBC plans to construct a large treatment plant near the Stroudsburg area by the Delaware, so that it can take water from the Broadhead and treat it. Also, pipelines can run into the plant from Stroudsburg, East Stroudsburg and Stroud Township, in addition to other areas.

East Stroudsburg's sewerage plant is running at capacity and can't handle any more. Stroudsburg is at that point. Stroud Township is another story. And that's where the problem is. Drive around the township on a rainy day with your car window open and smell the sewerage. Some township residents joke about it. The persons living near where the sewerage seeps to the top of the lawns don't think it's very funny.

The commissioners are blaming the DRBC for a responsive action to a region wide problem. The problem for Monroe is local, but throughout the years when the plan was being prepared, Monroe County participated with full knowledge of the scheme of things to come.

The county always is apprehensive when another agency begins to study local problems and suggests improvements. But in this particular case, it is the county which allowed it with its blessings.

Now the commissioners argue against it. At this stage, we would suggest they stop finding scapegoats for their own inabilities and to get to the task of solving the problems of Monroe County.

A sewerage system is expensive, but Monroe County must begin doing something without any further pussyfooting. The cost will be greater 10 years from now and we cannot afford to listen to the pie in the sky hope that a decade from now technology will have advanced to the degree that there will be a way to treat sewerage cheaply and simply.

In 1969, Marshall Reese, then chairman of the Monroe County Planning and Zoning Commission, said the county is facing serious problems with sewerage disposal. He also said that "somewhere we must reach a practical approach. We can't wait until 1990 or the year 2,000. Unless we do come up with some answers, we will be in serious trouble."

The DRBC plan is one solution. The commissioners and the planning commission's engineer don't believe the plan is practical. It's the only one we have, however, and the need for such a system lends it practicality at present, unless the county commissioners do what they haven't done before — find an inexpensive, practical solution.

Drummond Roundup

Sen. Scott in China

By SENATOR HUGH SCOTT
Minority Leader of the U. S. Senate

(Second of three articles)

(Written exclusively for Roscoe Drummond on the basis of Sen. Scott's recent trip to the People's Republic of China).

PEKING — Two all-encompassing achievements of the Chinese Communist Party establish its credibility and appeal to the Chinese completely aside from ideology.

One is the establishment of a nationhood which makes China, for the first time since the 18th Century, able to conduct its own activities on its own territory, free of outside interference and domestic disorder.

China has emerged as a unified state under the exclusive control of its central government.

Second accomplishment

The second great accomplishment since "liberation" is the attainment by the masses of a standard of living acceptable to them.

This means that the masses have food, clothing, shelter and health care sufficient to maintain their viability as workers in a producing society without reference to survival as a daily concern.

It is the difference between existence and life — even though their contemporary standard of living is still low by their own candid admission.

These bases are the earth and the atmosphere on which China stands and of which it breathes. Teaching, guiding, vivifying and heading is Chairman Mao. Larger than life and somehow closer to the red sunrise in the East than other men is the one who brought the New China into existence and who defines its present and future.

Has China rid itself of gods and erected the figure of a man to godhead?

About Maoism

We queried our hosts closely on the aspects of Maoism as a cult of personality or deification to replace the old, gone gods. "Mao receives the admiration and affection of the people because of what he has done for them — there is no cult of personality."

Still, the trappings of the one Supreme Teacher are there. Purity of thought has developed imperfections under less favorable circumstances in other places. What do the Chinese people believe in? "Materialism — Marxism as defined by Chairman Mao."

Lacking our competitive economy, in what ways do Chinese compete? What and where are their incentives? The answer was distilled from many conversations. Competition among regions is not encouraged ("Chairman Mao warns us against provincialism"). Nor is competition of individuals evident among brigades or communes or within industries.

While their is competition, of a sort, in the amassing of working points for pay credits (as among the four-man teams on the tea plantations), it is difficult to persuade Chinese to concede that this is true competition. "Some have more skills or more strength to improve the productivity of the commune."

What it boils down to is that there is, nevertheless, a real competitive effort, commonly shared. The People's Republic of China is in vivid competition with the year 1949. They are, with fierce determination, bent on exceeding year-by-year, their post-"liberation" achievements.

Contradictory

China is full of contradictions — horse-drawn or peasant-propelled vehicles passing huge thermal power plants, fields filled with ancient plows or modern tractors, a land of still limited resources, backward in its housing and general standard of living, marching resolutely forward in a winning battle against illiteracy. Self-deprecating in the old Chinese fashion, self-reliant in the new mode.

China as a totality adds up to something radically different from our knowledge, experience and concepts.

China is moving with great deliberation and careful planning in all areas — military, economic and social. It is drawing on useful aspects of its heritage and obliterating the rest on the way to the New China.

Western civilization has disrupted less advanced societies simply by the force and impact of its culture. In the case of China we have a strong culture determined to go its own way, to assimilate what it wants of the West with the retention of its own identity and direction.

Sleeping giant

The sleeping giant awakens and flexes his muscles. Benign, we are told, but exceedingly wary.

It is important that we normalize relations to the greatest possible extent. At the same time we must remain alert to the fact that there are basic philosophical differences in our views of man and society. Yet within this context it is possible for the United States and the People's Republic of China to co-exist.

Sen. Mike Mansfield and I felt that our host, Chiao Kuan-hua, of the People's Institute for Foreign Affairs, spoke for China's leaders and China's peoples when he observed in greeting us: "We believe differences exist but need not obstruct our coming together."

Informant verifies bomb plot

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — A government witness in a bomb plot conspiracy trial for four men testified Tuesday he and two undercover agents obtained dynamite from two of the defendants while posing as associates of the militant "Weathermen" group.

Donald P. Murphy, Sr., 39, a government informant and a Marine Corps veteran, testified for the second straight day at the federal court trial for four men charged with conspiring to blow up power, rail and industrial facilities in the Bethlehem-Allentown-Easton areas of Pennsylvania.

The four are David Heckman, 21, Bethlehem, John Vito, 51, Allentown, James Heiney, 22, Easton and Robert Rundle, also of Easton.

Murphy testified that while posing as associates of the Weathermen who had "bigger plans" in mind, the agents obtained at least 18 sticks of dynamite.

Murphy said Heiney led him and the two federal agents to 17 sticks of dynamite buried under some rocks along the Bushkill Creek in Easton last Oct. 4 and that he obtained another stick from Heckman's auto in Bethlehem at the invitation of the defendant.

Murphy testified under cross-examination from defense counsel David Rudovsky that Heckman and Heiney reached an agreement on bombing last August but "took no steps" to carry it out.

"That's the only agreement and then they were waiting for 'Weather' to do their plans?" Rudovsky asked.

"That was their impression," the witness replied.

Murphy also admitted under questioning from Rudovsky that all the dynamite secured in the case was handed over to him and the agents.

Murphy said the "bigger plans" attributed to the Weathermen included a fictitious report about an "atomic reactor" circulated by one of the federal agents.

Authentic repair planned

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Vatican experts said Tuesday they plan to repair the damaged Pietà to look exactly as Michelangelo sculpted it almost five centuries ago.

The white marble statue of the Virgin Mary holding the dead Jesus under the cross was damaged Sunday by the hammer blows of a man identified as Laszlo Toth, 33, a Hungarian who came to Rome last July from Sydney, Australia.

Toth knocked off one arm and the nose of the Madonna and shattered an eye and part of her face and veil before he was pulled from the platform on which the statue rests in a chapel of St. Peter's Basilica.

Decleio Redig de Campos, the Brazilian-born director of the Vatican Museums and Restoration Laboratory, acknowledged that the modern approach to restoration calls for a clear demarcation between what is original and what has been restored in a work of art as an aid to future scholars.

But, he said, "in such an extremely refined work as this, we cannot allow the repair to intrude." La Pietà is considered Michelangelo's masterpiece and one of the greatest works of the Renaissance.

Seven injured in explosion

BELFAST (UPI) — Three bombs rocked Belfast Tuesday, slightly injuring seven persons. Peace campaigns by women in the Roman Catholic areas of Londonderry and Belfast gained momentum.

Police said one bomb exploded without warning inside a car parked next to the central post office. Another went off in a nearby stocking factory shortly after gunmen ordered the building evacuated. The injuries were a result of these two blasts.

Senator's wife withholds tax

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Declaring she is ready to accept whatever penalty may be imposed, the wife of Sen. Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., has refused to pay $6,200 in federal income taxes until the United States withdraws from the Indochina war.

A spokesman in Hart's Senate office said Tuesday that his wife, Janey, had discussed such action with her husband for sometime, but did not make up her mind until President Nixon announced his order to mine North Vietnam's harbors on May 10.

"That firming her decision," the spokesman said.

In a letter to Johnnie M. Walters, director of the Internal Revenue Service, Mrs. Hart said her conscience no longer permitted her to voluntarily contribute tax money toward the war effort and that she was ready to accept "whatever sanctions apply."

The spokesman said that Mrs. Hart was placing an amount equal to the taxes due in an escrow account, presumably to be used to pay her back taxes when the United States has disengaged from the war.

It is customary for the Internal Revenue Service to impose a 6 per cent penalty on such delinquent tax payments. However, the IRS could seize a bank account if the taxpayer steadfastly refused to pay.

Mrs. Hart, an outspoken war critic for several years, is an heir to an automobile fortune and pays her income taxes on a quarterly basis. The $6,200 she owes is for the first quarter of this year.

Hart's spokesman said the senator and his wife had "a lot of long and quiet talks for weeks preceding her decision." He said Hart told her that refusing to pay taxes was not a

Customer in hurry shoots self

UNION CITY, Pa. (UPI) — The young man walked into the Union City Diner early Tuesday and shouted "coffee!"

A patron said a waitress nearby continued to flip eggs in a hot skillet for the breakfast special.

The man grew irate and pounded the counter for service. When the waitress continued to flip the eggs, he drew a gun and fired once into the ceiling, then once into his stomach, the bullet passing through his body.

Union City Hospital officials said the man, identified as David L. Cowhick, 24, Cambridge Springs, Crawford County, was in serious condition after day-long surgery.

Rosemary Rice, one of two waitresses on duty, said she was not aware the man had addressed her specifically.

"But when they get rowdy, I tell them to get out," she said.

"I looked around after the shots and saw him lying on the floor. Then he got up and walked out. The blood was running down his back where the bullet went through."

She could not give a reason for the action.

Pat Nixon has hectic tour through Moscow

ride on a Russian subway Tuesday.

Wearing a belted, beige, brown and gold tweed suit, Mrs. Nixon was swept up in a sea of humanity for a four-stop subway ride. She was swirled along with more than 50 Russian and American reporters, officials and 30 secret police agents assigned to guard her.

The scene so unnerved Mrs. Andrei A. Gromyko, wife of the Soviet foreign minister, that she snapped at reporters persistently trying to interview Mrs. Nixon: "Why don't you ask your questions elsewhere?"

Mrs. Nixon had to step gingerly at times, but she kept her cool. "You have to be agile to get on that subway," she quipped.

She also told the metro administrator, Alexander Novochatsky, "Yours is the loveliest subway system in the world."

"It's wonderful to get such high praise from you," he said.

They took their subway ride in the lightly traveled Mid-afternoon after Mrs. Nixon toured an elementary school where several courses are taught in English.

Mrs. Leonid I. Brezhnev, wife of the general secretary of the Soviet Communist Party, was obviously disturbed by the crush of reporters at the start of the tour of Secondary School No. 42.

At one point, Mrs. Nixon patted her hand and when her expression became even grimmer a few minutes later, Mrs. Nixon told her, "I'm going to take care of you... We don't want to lose your life."

Later Mrs. Brezhnev dismissed a reporter who asked what she thought of Mrs. Nixon. "Later on," Mrs. Brezhnev replied.

Photographers had a field day with Mrs. Nixon in the subway, ordered built by Josef Stalin as a showpiece of Soviet achievement. Backdrops for their pictures included a statue representing Soviet power and a mosaic, carrying the slogan, "Peace everywhere in the World." It showed a mother holding a child in her arms.

"That's interesting," Mrs. Nixon said of the mosaic. Asked if she noticed the absence of advertising in the subway, she replied "Oh, yes. It's great."

At times, even Mrs. Nixon seemed distressed at the pushing and shoving outside her cordon of Russian security. So did Novachatsky, and other Soviet and American women in the party looked irate.

But at the last stop, Mrs. Nixon gallantly said, "It's a pity we have so little time here." After that she joined her hostesses for tea and a chance to relax away from the crowds.

At the school, Mrs. Nixon was impressed at the classroom order. "The students here are all better disciplined than in America," said Mrs. Nixon, a former teacher.

Mrs. Nixon sampled a cookie at the school and pronounced a nervous young girl's recitation of a poem in Russian "very good."

She told an English teacher in another class, "You flatter me."

The first lady presented six basketballs to the school and watched a group of boys play under direction of a woman. "I've never seen a woman basketball coach before," Mrs. Nixon said.

Ransom-Mann rites in Richmond Church

BANGOR — Miss Doris Estella Mann, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William E. Mann, Sr. of Bangor R.D. 2, was married to David Adair Ransom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Ransom of 185 Market St., Belvidere, N.J., on May 20 at 2 p.m.

Rev. Evan W. Thomas performed the ceremony at 2 p.m. in the Richmond United Methodist Church, which was decorated with bouquets of white gladiolus. Mrs. Stanley Miller was organist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of peau de soie with an illusion neckline and puffed sleeves outlined in embroidered lace at neckline and cuffs. Her veil was held by a crown of crystal clusters and seed pearls. She carried a bouquet of white roses and babies breath with white streamers.

Miss Donna Warman of Phillipsburg, N.J., as maid of honor, wore a floor length gown of mint green taffeta with lace flowers applied on puffed sleeves and bodice and carried a nosegay of tinted carnations with green streamers.

Miss Barbara Werkheiser of Nazareth and Miss Laura Steuer of East Stroudsburg, were bridesmaids. They wore pale pink gowns in the same style and carried pink carnations and babies breath.

Greg Pysker of Mount Bethel R.D. 1, was best man.

Ushers were Ronald Mann, brother of the bride, and Ralph Reeder of Belvidere.

A reception for 80 guests was held at the Veterans Memorial Home, Belvidere, decorated with white, pink and green decorations.

Leaving for a tour of the Southern states, the bride wore a pale blue pant suit.

They will make their home at Mount Bethel R.D. 1. The bride, a graduate of Bangor Area High School in the class of 1969, was graduated with Class 8, Northampton County Vocational-Technical School and received her state nursing license in 1971. She is employed by Easton Hospital.

Her husband, a graduate of Belvidere High School in the class of 1969, is employed by Chicago Combustion Inc., Belvidere, N.J.

Aids college visitation

INDIANA — Maryellen Shook, a junior at Indiana University of Pennsylvania, helped make the university's home economics high school visitation day a success by serving on the coffee hour committee.

Majoring in home economics education, Miss Shook is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard W. Shook, 21 North Tenth St., Stroudsburg.

Robb-Long wedding at Trinity Episcopal

MOUNT POCONO — Trinity Episcopal Church, Mount Pocono, was the setting for the marriage of Mary Catherine Long to Lt. William Stewart Robb, Jr., on April 22 at 3 p.m.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Charles T. Taylor of 419 Vincent St., Willow Grove. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William S. Robb Sr. of Pocono Pines.

Rev. Ralph Roth and the Hon. Alexander Barbieri officiated at the ceremony.

The bride was given in marriage by her young sons, Mark R., 10, and Scott L. Long, 11.

She wore a floor-length gown of old-fashioned unbleached muslin with a high lace collar with a rose-pink ribbon run through the lace, lace cuffs, and four panels of lace on the skirt. She carried a white glamelia with an ivory rose tipped in pink as a center on a Bible. She wore a pink ribbon and babies breath in her hair.

Mrs. Don Volk, sister of the bride, of 1712 Farr Road, Wyomissing, was matron of honor. She wore a dress with a long-sleeved blouse of beige satin with a long cocoa skirt with beige embroidered scrolls and beige fringe on the hemline. She carried a basket of white, yellow and pink daisies with pink ribbon in her hair.

Garry B. Robb was his brother's best man. Ushers were Steven and Thomas Robb.

The church was decorated with an arrangement of tropical greens with one glamelia with rose center on the altar. Music included "O Perfect Love", "Impossible Dream", "Love Story" and "You'll Never Walk Alone".

An informal reception with a toast to the bride in champagne and cake cut with a military sword, was held at the home of the bridegroom and was followed by a dinner in the Heritage Room at Pocono Manor for the wedding party and guests.

The bride is a graduate of Juniata College and is inheritance tax secretary for the state of California. Her husband, a graduate of Exeter and Wabash College, Ind., is a Lieutenant in the U.S. Navy, an A-N pilot based in Lemoore, Calif., where they will make their home.

Just Between Us—

By Bobby Westbrook

Surprise parties are especially hard to pull off, especially if there are grandchildren involved but the three Harl daughters did it for their parents' wedding anniversary. Mrs. Harl jumped about a foot when everybody yelled "Surprise!" just as she reached the head of the stairs at Water Gap Country Club.

What really broke them both up, however, was the song the girls had made up in their honor. It was really funny and touching both at once, and brought tears as well as laughter.

I had my own share of surprises over the weekend, as one by one assorted nephews, wives, and friends decided to come to the river until it ended up with 14 plus three large and jealous dogs.

Like the puzzle about the man with the fox, the duck, the grain, the problem was to let the people be together and the dogs separated, especially with rain threatened for the whole weekend.

I must say Sunday's sun was one of the nicest surprises and we ended up with one of the best fish fries we've had in years and years, seasoned by years of shared memories. For the wives, without the acquired conviction that everything always turns out just fine, there must have been a period of doubt — to say the least — but they, too came through with flying colors.

It's a great feeling when, having had a part in all the growing up from diapers to the first time they swam the river, you discover that as adults, they're still good company and friends.

Miss Schneider earns degree

BRADENTON, Fla. — Miss Marta Anne Schneider, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Schneider of Buck Hill Falls and Bradenton, Fla., recently received her Associate of Arts degree from Manatee Junior College, Bradenton. She achieved a 3.40 cumulative average and was on the dean's list three out of five semesters.

Daughters entertain on Harls' anniversary

DELAWARE WATER GAP — A surprise 40th wedding anniversary party was given for Mr. and Mrs. John W. Harl of Stroudsburg R.D. 5, by their three daughters and their husbands, Dr. and Mrs. Philip Martin, Cherry Valley; Mr. and Mrs. John Roessner, East Stroudsburg R.D. 2 and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Bruner, Jr. of Hope, N.J.

Invited to be guests of the Martins at the Water Gap Country Club, the Harls arrived to find all the guests assembled, including acquaintances of many years' standing.

Mrs. Harl was presented with an orchid by her granddaughter, Beth Martin and John was presented with a carnation boutonniere.

Following the dinner, the three daughters, who used to sing together often as children, again joined in harmony with an original anniversary song combining serious sentiments with light-hearted reminiscences.

Guests included Rev. and Mrs. Norman Kellow, formerly of Cherry Valley, now of Alloway, N.J.; Mr. and Mrs. Paul Ohl of Wynnewood; Pastor and Mrs. J. Christopher Smith, Miss Bobbie Wilke, Mr. and Mrs. Lou Kauffman of Southampton; Mr. and Mrs. Walter Bruner, Sr., New Hope; Mr. and Mrs. Forrest Bonser, Mrs. Horace Westbrook, and the grandchildren.

The Harls have six grandchildren, five of them boys: Greg and Jeff Bruner, Daniel and Jimmy Roessner, and Philip and Beth Martin.

In charge of the kitchen shower for dish towels, pot holder, soap, etc. will be Mrs. Hazel Miller.

Mrs. Julia Hay and Mrs. Joan Benell will visit the sick and shut-in members.

Miss Sophia Kasper, chairman of the social bazaar held the first Sunday of each month, would appreciate any help for the kitchen and baked goods. Members may contact Miss Kasper.

Members who may have any articles to be sold at the July 15 and 16 bazaar should bring them to the June meeting.

The Slim Gourmet

From mailbag

Slimgourmania seems to be taking hold in kitchens all over the country, if my mail is any indication! Calorie-chasers are cunningly creative when it comes to cooking up great ideas. Here are some imaginative suggestions from my Slim Gourmet mailbag. I'm delighted to share them.

Mrs. Moon's Pineapple Sherbet

(Only 81 calories a serving) (Mrs. F. M. Moon of Arlington, Texas, writes: "This is an old, old recipe my mother used to make. I've cut way down on the sugar. I've tried to make it with no sugar at all, but it doesn't turn out as well. You have no idea how much I look forward to the Slim Gourmet column!")

2 cups crushed pineapple, juice-packed or low-calorie
5 tablespoons sugar sweetener to equal 3 tablespoons sugar
2 cups buttermilk

Combine all ingredients and freeze until slushy. Beat with an electric mixer and refreeze. Makes eight half-cup servings. (Nine quarter-grain tablets dissolved in a little hot water will equal three tablespoons sugar. If you are using other type of sweetener, consult label for equivalents.)

Mrs. Regan's Sugarless "Sugar" Cookies

(Only 24 calories each) (Mrs. H.L. Regan of Vancouver, Wash., writes: "This is my favorite low-calorie cookie recipe because it's so versatile. It's easy to mix up for drop cookies. Cookie cutouts can be adapted for various holidays. For a flavor variation: use one-quarter teaspoon of almond extract and 1 teaspoon grated lemon rind in place of the vanilla.")

4 tablespoons oil
3 tablespoons diet margarine (room temperature) sugar substitute to equal one cup
1 tablespoon skimmed milk
1 egg
1/2 teaspoon vanilla
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 1/2 cups all-purpose flour

Beat oil, margarine and sugar substitute together. Add milk, egg and vanilla and beat well. Sift together salt, baking powder and flour. Blend in. For drop cookies; drop by the teaspoonful on a nonstick cookie sheet, at least three inches apart, and bake in a preheated 375-degree oven for seven minutes. Makes 48 cookies.

For rolled cookies, add an extra two tablespoons of flour to the recipe. Refrigerate for at least one hour, covered. Roll out on a flour-dusted surface.

SUGARLESS GLAZE — to glaze those "sugar" cookies without sugar, just mix a few drops of food coloring with egg yolk and brush the tops of cookie cutouts before baking. They'll have a shiny surface

"icing." Don't forget that sugarless baked goods don't brown... so don't overbake.

DEVILED EGGS — Joy Atard of Natick, Mass., writes: "Instead of mayonnaise, I mix my egg yolks with plain yogurt, some dried onion flakes (or fresh-grated onion) and just a pinch of dry mustard. Absolutely delicious! By the way I've lost 45 pounds!"

"Make-Believe" Butter — Wilda M. Galbraith of Homestead, Fla., writes: "I've discovered a new butter! Just put equal parts of Neufchatel cheese and part-skim ricotta cheese in your blender and whip on high speed. Add salt and yellow food coloring to taste. It makes a great spread at very few calories."

(Calorie-reduced Chinese "Fried Rice," Chow Mein, Egg Foo Yung, Egg Drop Soup, Teriyaki — for these and others, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope and 25 cents to SLIM GOURMET ORIENTAL RECIPES, in care of this newspaper, 50 West Shore Trail, Sparta, N.J. 07871.)

Opening lead — ace of clubs.
The impetuous player who plays first and thinks later must occasionally pay for his folly. Bridge is not the sort of game where you can play spontaneously and expect to achieve the best results. There are altogether too many variations of hands you can hold and situations you can face to rely entirely on past experience to guide you unerringly to the right bid or play.

Take this hand, where almost anyone might go wrong. Assume you're East and that your illustrious partner leads the ace and another club, which you win with the king. It is not difficult to realize that West has no more clubs and that you can give him a ruff. But if your thinking stops there and you impulsively return a club, declarer makes the contract. His only loss would be two clubs, a club ruff, a spade and a diamond.

Furthermore, you can tell from looking at dummy that this result is preordained if you return a club. At the same time, you can also tell that there is a moderately good chance of stopping the contract if you shift to the ace and another diamond, instead of returning a club at trick three.

If you do this, South must eventually fail. He cannot do better than lead a trump, which you win with ace. Now, belatedly, you play a club, which West ruffs, and when he returns a diamond, you also ruff — thus giving your side its sixth trick and defeating the contract. You can then apologize to partner for having failed to give him the club ruff earlier. He gave you such a scornful look when you led the ace and another diamond instead of a club that you'd better try to placate him by apologizing for your seeming stupidity.

E.S. school board proposes varied tax rates in district

By CONRAD GROVE
Pocono Record Reporter

EAST STROUDSBURG—The East Stroudsburg School Board proposed different tax rates for each of its six municipalities early Tuesday morning to finance the bulk of a new $3.1 million budget.

By a unanimous decision at 12:35 a.m., directors set the rates in an attempt to balance varying percentages of market value to assessed value. The budget rose nearly $400,000.

Next year, property owners in East Stroudsburg borough can expect to pay 52 mills, with Middle Smithfield Township at 66, Price Township at 83, Smithfield Township at 56, and Pike County's Lehman Township at 78 and Porter Township at 79.

The move was discretionary, according to board solicitor Alex Bensinger, under a 1970 amendment to the school code. Millage this year was 58 for Monroe County and 77 for Pike.

The rates chosen were picked over a second alternative mandating a three-mill hike across the board.

Board President Irving Sommer labeled the action "fairer," but was quick to point out it's one reason why school directors pushed for re-evaluation of district assessments.

A systematic re-evaluation of Monroe County's assessed value is scheduled to be completed this summer. It should equalize East Stroudsburg's millage for the 1973-74 school year.

The millage for next year, however, is based on assessed value taken Aug. 1, 1971. The property tax is expected to bring in more than $1.6 million, almost $100,000 more.

Ratios of assessed value to market value vary drastically, according to date by the state tax equalization board.

While the borough's percentage is 34.8 Price is at 21.7 with Middle Smithfield at 27.3, Smithfield at 32.2, Lehman at 23.1 and Porter at 22.7. District-wide, the ratio of taxes to assessments is 60.4.

All other taxes remain stable: two five dollar per capita taxes, a one per cent wage income tax, a one per cent real estate transfer tax, a 120 mill occupation assessment tax and a $10 occupation privilege tax. Total local revenue is about $2.1 million.

State and federal monies to the district, meanwhile, are expected to drop. The state aid decline is attributed to the declining ratio in market vs. assessed value, from $649,766 to $618,362. Federal monies were reduced $12,000, from $54,000.

The heavy local support needed is caused by the Tocks Island project. Currently, about seven per cent of the district's total assessed valuation has been purchased by the federal government.

Yet no revenue will come until these purchases total 10 per cent. Then the federal government will yield about $100,000, equivalent to about four mills on the real estate tax.

Instructional costs show the biggest bite, rising from $1.5 million to $1,778,225. They are followed by debt service, inclining from $243,250 to $247,625.

A breakdown of other anticipated expenditures (with last year's figure in parentheses) reveals:

Administration, $130,583 ($128,179); pupil personnel services, $47,446 ($44,888); health services, $48,486 ($44,026); pupil transportation, $88,230 ($83,439); operation and maintenance, $268,834 ($232,570).

And, fixed charges, $239,627 ($218,747); food services, $5,800 (no estimate); student activities, $44,142 ($30,275); community services, $8,464 ($7,260); capital outlay, $89,406 ($34,704); intersystem payments, $101,807 ($77,500).

flexibility for elective courses.

Piatt presented the proposal to the instructional staff last year. It was defeated by two votes.

The day will be broken down into 40-minute periods. The school currently has five 45-minute sessions and two 60-minute periods. A Middle States Assn. evaluating team recommended the move.

In other action, the directors:

—Granted a $1,000 annual salary increase to Superintendent Peterson, thus bringing her salary to $26,000.

—Elected Willard Steller as treasurer at $1,850 yearly; Bensinger, Bensinger and Pentz as solicitor at $2,850; J.L. Cohen as auditor at $2,000 and A.J. Berkheimer as tax collector.

—Voted to mandate all cafeteria workers receive annual health certificates from physicians. The East Stroudsburg borough has a similar provision.

—Accepted "with regret" the resignation of Lewis Hastie, secondary biology teacher with 41 years of service, and the resignation of Mrs. Sharon Miller, secondary English teacher.

—Agreed to grant a 15-cent hourly increase to school bus drivers for next year and the following. Cafeteria workers were granted the same; secretaries and custodians receive 5.5 per cent hikes for the next two years.

—Hired Terry A. Davis as a secondary music teacher and elected Anselm Thomas cafeteria manager. Harvey Strunk was named maintenance head.

—Named Joseph DeVivo as a painter for the summer; agreed to close the school at 1 p.m. Monday, June 12; accepted the resignation of Kathleen Scagliotta, secretary.

Holiday closing

EAST STROUDSBURG — Confront II, in East Stroudsburg, will be closed all day May 29 in observance of Memorial Day. The rehabilitation center will re-open again on Tuesday, May 30.

No blacks available for jobs in Monroe's welfare office

STROUDSBURG — The Monroe County Board of Public Assistance was told Tuesday no black people can be found to work in the county's welfare office.

"I have personally interviewed five colored people," said Carmine P. DiPronto, executive director of the agency. "This is what I am supposed to do — to help these people."

DiPronto referred to a state Department of Welfare mandate requiring the hiring of minorities in the Commonwealth's largest bureaucracy.

DiPronto said his efforts to comply with the state mandate have taken him to three community leaders for Monroe County's black population. He said as a result of his efforts five blacks have been interviewed by the agency.

"When a black person comes into the office, regardless of why they come in, I have instructed the girls to interview them," DiPronto said. He said the policy of letting any black who comes into the agency know there are employment opportunities might be a means of finding blacks looking for a job.

"Maybe the person there doesn't want the job, but he may know someone who does," DiPronto said.

Dr. Thomas Blair, member of the Welfare Department's Regional Advisory Council, suggested the board not refer to blacks as "colored people" or the "black element". He said it may help establish the relationship the agency is seeking.

Blair also suggested the board get in touch with the Director of Minority Affairs at East Stroudsburg State College to see if he could be of assistance in getting blacks interested in working for the welfare department.

Even if blacks do approach the agency for a job, they will now have to wait the July civil service test date for full consideration, DiPronto said. The tests are backlogged.

In other matters, DiPronto reported the local agency had successfully withstood an onslaught from the Department of Agriculture team spot checking food stamp files May 12.

He said the team swoops into an agency without prior notice and examines files for improprieties. None were found in the Monroe County agency, according to the director.

A change in the remedial eye care service was noted by DiPronto, who said the local agency is now authorized to make appointments with eye specialists for welfare clients. Before, the local agency reviewed the case and authorized the medical attention, and the state made the appointment.

Reporting on a meeting with the regional office May 17, DiPronto said he had been asked to outline the needs of the county agency. He said he listed needs in housing, legal aid, marriage counseling, and home-maker care.

High on the list, DiPronto said, is the need for public transportation in Monroe County. Welfare clients need the transportation for job interviews and to get to medical appointments.

Pressure felt
A recent budget slash which has since been restored by the legislature in Pennsylvania put pressure on welfare across the Commonwealth.

DiPronto said Monroe County's agency was no exception. He reported panic among clients afraid they would not receive their assistance when the legislature said no to $54 million in welfare.

"I had one old lady with a cane come in to me and say 'Mr., if I don't get that medical assistance check, I'm going to die,'" DiPronto said.

A recent decision by the legislature to restore the funds will probably be good news to the welfare recipients and take the pressure off the agency.

DiPronto spoke of the matter as if it were routine that the budget looks shaky and money will always be forwarded from the capitol sooner or later.

"I tell them not to worry. The money will get here. It just may take some time," DiPronto said.

During April, 137 applicants for public assistance, 134 applicants for medical assistance and 99 for food stamps were reported by the executive director.

'Mischief' costs six months

STROUDSBURG — Judge Arlington W. Williams sentenced Samuel Van Landingham, of Shawnee-on-Delaware to six months in the county jail Tuesday for malicious mischief as anticipated guilty pleas were heard for the June term of criminal court.

The sentence was handed down following an appeal for leniency from Van Landingham's lawyer, Bernard Billick. Billick said the incident in question involved an "appropriation" of a propane gas tank by Van Landingham two weeks after he entered the county from Florida.

Billick said his client had been asked to assist Nicholas Vandenhurk in getting means to heat his dwelling on March 26. That led to the appropriation of the gas tank and a subsequent arrest for larceny and receiving stolen goods.

Van Landingham was incarcerated in the county lock-up since that date. Through plea-bargaining the charge was reduced to malicious mischief and Van Landingham pleaded guilty.

Billick said the owner of the gas tank had since indicated a wish to withdraw the charge. He said his client would be looking for work now that the resorts in the area were beginning their summer seasons.

Williams pronounced the sentence saying, "You get him a job so we know he's working and not on public relief and we'll consider early parole."

For the same charge Vandenhurk, of Shawnee-on-Delaware, also said guilty, but sentence was deferred pending a pre-sentence investigation.

Joseph Cassebaum, of Mt. Bethel, said he was guilty of burglary, and sentence was deferred pending a psychiatric examination.

Joseph Warnagiris, of Trenton, N.J., pleaded guilty to a charge of larceny. A pre-sentence investigation was ordered in the case.

For violations of the motor vehicle code, Judge Williams handed out fines to those entering early guilty pleas and waiving the right of trial.

For driving while his license was under suspension John Galenis, of Stroudsburg, was given a $200 fine and ordered to pay costs. A $300 fine was given to Dale Stone, of East Stroudsburg, for failure to stop in the event of an accident.

Moth spray to begin

STROUDSBURG — John Bitzer, district forester, announced chemical spray plans for gypsy moth today. He said spraying will begin in Kunkletown.

Another area will be Buckwa Creek between Kunkletown and Saylorburg. Those areas will be sprayed with Dyltox.

In Brodheadsville, McIlhenny and Sciota (north and south of Sciota), Sovin will be used to attack the moths. The operations will probably begin around 6 a.m.

On Thursday, spraying will probably continue in Saylorburg. Western Monroe County will be treated during the first week of operation, weather permitting.

Health center head quits over administration fight

By GARY GROSSMAN
Pocono Record Reporter

EAST STROUDSBURG — Dr. Margaret Evermon, director of the Community Mental Health Center for Carbon-Monroe-Pike Counties since its inception in 1968, recently resigned due to administrative problems in the program.

"Through my resignation I am trying to see administrative changes in the program," said Dr. Evermon, advocating the center become a separate entity in the future.

Currently, the Mental Health Center located on the sixth floor of the General Hospital of Monroe County, is a case of schizophrenic administration, according to Dr. Evermon who said authority is divided among three units.

Administrative responsibility is divided among the hospital administration, the center and the Mental Health Mental Retardation agency for the tri-county region.

Dr. Evermon would like the center to become a separate entity with its own board to oversee responsibility. "The center really is never going to be run as effectively as it could if there was one administrative center."

"Therapists are conditioned to act when a patient needs something and people in administration don't feel the same sense of urgency," Dr. Evermon said.

One of the problems is the lack of budgetary control from the sixth floor, according to Dr. Evermon, who complained of funding difficulties through the MHMR program administered by Thomas Foley.

"Recently, my problems have been action on outpatient programs with Foley," Dr. Evermon said. "Things are not getting better. I told Foley a month ago we needed staff for the methadone maintenance program, and there hasn't been any action yet."

The Community Mental Health Center began a methadone maintenance program for heroin addicts almost a year ago. At the present time 16 heroin addicts and 100 addicts of other drugs are being treated by the center.

Dr. Evermon said the drug treatment program is meeting minimum requirements for staff through the availability of people not involved full time in the program. She said one nurse has been volunteering her own time to work with the program.

"It's chaos, because they are already doing their own job," Dr. Evermon said, referring to the persons who make themselves available as staff.

The sponsorship of the community mental health center has been a controversial subject between the hospital center and the MHMR agency for almost a year.

MHMR is seeking to take over sponsorship of the center from the hospital. Dr. Evermon opposes that move in favor of the independence of the Mental Health Center.

"MHMR is supposed to function as a check and balance on the center. If it is consolidated into MHMR as suggestions indicate, it will become mass confusion because you would really have someone checking on its own operation," declared Dr. Evermon.

She said the consolidation under MHMR would increase the possibility of a violation of a patients civil rights. Dr. Evermon disclaims a personal conflict between herself and Foley as reason for resignation.

"I hope that in my leaving the position, the future organization of the entire center can be studied objectively and that any interpretations which have revolved around the factor of the personality of the director and the possible conflict with MHMR administration for personal authority will be laid to rest," states her letter of resignation.

Dr. Evermon said there was no reason to believe the situation would change for the new director of the Mental Health Center — "not unless you get a new center."

The Board of Directors of the General Hospital of Monroe County Monday accepted Dr. Evermon's resignation "with regret." The board accepted the recommendation of the mental health committee and elected Dr. Haydn Collins acting medical director and Dr. Peter Dogliodomenico acting administrator of the inpatient mental health unit.

Dr. Evermon's resignation is effective June 1. She said she will take a leave of absence with the possibility of requesting work with the center in another position next September.

Records of school not private

HARRISBURG (UPI)—Commonwealth Court Tuesday dismissed a suit filed by a Wayne County couple who said a state audit of their books was an "invasion of privacy."

John and Letitia Reilly, of Hawley, sought to block Auditor General Robert P. Casey from conducting audits and investigations of the private school which they operate.

Hillcrest School, a school for mentally retarded children received over $1 million in state funds between 1966 and 1970.

The opinion, written by Judge Harry A. Kramer, said that Casey's department has the legal right to audit the books of any person, association or agency which receives state aid.

"Although not all of the children at the Hillcrest School were financed, directly or indirectly, by the Commonwealth," Kramer said.

"Hillcrest School could not have provided the services it did without state funds; and, therefore, the Hillcrest School was financially aided by the Commonwealth."

Casey reported to UPI at the time the suit was filed last fall that the Reillys wrote off $600,000 of the million dollars awarded them by the state as personal expenses.

He said an audit of the couple's cancelled checks, check stubs, bills, bank statements and deposit slips showed there were "a number of questionable expenditures."

The Reillys said Casey's audit resulted in "harassment, embarrassment and an invasion of privacy" which would cause "irreparable harm and inconvenience."

The opinion said Casey had a duty to audit the Reillys' books and records.

P.M. School Board buys land from school authority

SWIFTWATER — In a four-page whereas-filled document, Pocono Mountain school directors conveyed 45 acres of land Tuesday night to the district's authority board.

The land, purchased over the past several years, is earmarked for the district's new $5.6 million high school.

The authority will refund the school board the $37,000 purchase price at 10 a.m. today, when final bond settlement papers are signed at Monroe Security Bank and Trust Co., district depository.

The school will be financed through a $5.17 million bond issue sold to L.F. Rothschild, New York City banking investors.

Annual rental costs, over a 20-year period, will be $427,000, bringing the total cost of the project to $8,548,000.

The school will be built for a capacity of 1,150 students. The present high school will then become a middle school for grades five-through-eight.

Enrollment in the district has increased about 34 per cent annually since 1966, to 2,800. Educational consultants indicate about 470 more students will be added to the district within the next five years.

Construction costs for the school project are figured at $5.6 million. Completion date is September, 1973.

The Sutter Corp., Nescopec, was awarded the general construction contract in April at $3,179,300.

Postal workers ready to picket

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Union officials said Tuesday postal workers will picket post offices around the nation in the next three days to back up local bargaining demands and to protest "foodragging" by Congress on legislation to allow U.S. Postal Service employees to strike and engage in political activity.

The spokesman for the American Postal Workers Union (APWU) emphasized it would be "informational picketing" and not a strike, and the picketing would be done by off-duty workers who would not try to prevent the public from entering the post offices.

However, a spokesman for the APWU in Monroe County said he did not believe there would be any picketing in the Stroudsburg-East Stroudsburg area. He pointed out, however, he has not received orders from higher union officials concerning the action.

He said, "We've got a union now and that union has a lot of grievances. They're just doing this to bring some attention to those grievances so Congress won't keep putting them off."

The local spokesman concluded, "We're a small community here and we're happy."

National union sources said the picketing could be a prelude to a strike, despite the no-strike provisions in federal law for postal workers, if no progress is made on local bargaining and legislation. Many postal workers went on strike in 1970 despite a federal law banning them from striking.

The APWU represents more than 300,000 postal clerks, special delivery messengers, maintenance personnel and motor vehicle operators. Other unions representing an equal number of letter carriers, mail handlers and rural mail carriers will not be involved in the picketing, officials said.

Postal unions negotiated national contracts with the Postal Service.

Motorists injured in crash

STROUDSBURG — Three persons were injured Tuesday night when two cars collided almost head-on near the Banner Metal Co. on Business Route 209 just outside the Stroudsburg Borough line.

The injured were identified as Mr. and Mrs. Edward Koenig, of Palmerton R.D. 1 and Joseph Padula, of Stroudsburg. The nature and extent of the injuries were not immediately made known.

According to an eyewitness at the scene, one of the vehicles involved ran off the road at the crest of a hill and went out of control. It then careened sideways into the southbound lane and collided broadside with the front of the southbound auto.

The impact threw the northbound vehicle back across both lanes of travel and into a wooded area on the east berm.

Dallenbach STP selection to replace hurt Pollard

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (UPI) — Drivers and crews today get one last chance to practice on the Indianapolis Motor Speedway track before the running of Saturday's 500-mile auto race.

Three hours of carburetion tests were slated this morning on the 2.2-mile oval, giving drivers and crews the opportunity to operate their machines under race conditions with full fuel loads.

The 33 cars in the starting lineup will be the only racers allowed on the track.

No other cars have been allowed out on the course since time trials were concluded late Sunday, and none will be allowed on the track after today's running until the race itself.

Car owner Andy Granatelli named veteran Wally Dallenbach, East Brunswick, N.J., to drive his machine in Saturday's race.

Dallenbach, 35, had qualified another car but it was "bumped" by a faster one on the final day of qualifications.

Dallenbach, who has competed in every race here since 1967 but who has never placed in the top 10, will replace Art Pollard, Medford, Ore., who suffered a broken leg in a practice accident two days after he qualified the car.

The car was badly mangled but was scheduled to be ready for today's carburetion tests.

The car must make an appearance at the tests because it had been damaged. It must pass technical inspection and be cleared for the race by officials of the sanctioning United States Auto Club.

Mounties defeated by 7-2

SLATINGTON — Slatington scored four runs in the second inning Tuesday and went on to beat Stroudsburg, 7-2, in a Lehigh Valley League baseball game.

After Woody Peters homered in the first with one man on, Stroudsburg narrowed the margin to 2-1 when Bob Hoffman got through an error, stole second and scored on Brad Barton's double.

But the Bulldogs' four runs in the second plus one in the fifth put the game out of reach. Stroudsburg's second run came in the seventh when Glen Yetter walked and Lew Silver singled. After Yetter was forced out, Silver scored on Al McCormick's single.

The 4-13 Mounties wind up their season today by hosting Pocono Mountain.

440, relay team pace Stroudsburg

BETHLEHEM — Mark Adams took one first place Tuesday night and anchored the record-breaking one-mile relay team to lead Stroudsburg in the second annual Meet of Champions.

Adams won the 440-yard dash in 50.3 to go with his Lehigh Valley League and District II titles. Adams ran a blazing 48.4 anchor on the relay team which placed second with a 3:28.6 behind winning Easton's 3:27.4.

Adams, along with Gary Olson, Tony Romano and Steve Angle shattered their own school record of 3:32.4 set earlier this year.

Mark Davis finished fifth in the 100-yard dash with a 10.4 while the 880 relay team of Ron Reddicks, Jeff Otto, Mike Shields and Angle did not place.

Todd Samet of East Stroudsburg finished third in the shot put with a 49-7. Pocono Mountain's Jack Fallenstein was fourth in the 100-yard dash with a 10.3 while Ed Westcott took third in the discus with a 140-11.

Adams, both relay teams and Davis will participate in the state meet Friday and Saturday at Penn State.

Niekro's hit wins own game

CINCINNATI (UPI)—Pitcher Phil Niekro belted a home run in the third inning and Marty Perez doubled home Dusty Baker in the eighth Tuesday night to give the Atlanta Braves a 2-1 victory over the Cincinnati Reds.

The victory was the sixth against four losses for Niekro, who held the Reds to five hits, walked none and struck out two.

The Reds' only run came in the first inning.

Cavaliers to throw 'tough guy' at Saucon Valley Friday

BY CHUCK FIERSON
Record Sports Editor

EAST STROUDSBURG — East Stroudsburg baseball coach Jim Reynolds admits the Cavaliers have been under pressure all season. But he is quick to add his team plays best under pressure.

So who does he pick to pitch against Saucon Valley at 8 p.m. Friday at Whitehall's Copley Field for the Lehigh-Northampton League championship?

The guy who Reynolds says is "at his best when things are tough."

The last time East Stroudsburg won a league baseball championship, Bob Beck was just one year old. But the 5-9, 165-pound left-hander will get a chance to write his name in the Cavalier history books.

East Stroudsburg's only Lehigh-Northampton League baseball championship was in 1955.

Beck is the stalwart of an outstanding East Stroudsburg pitching staff. In 55 innings he has allowed just six earned runs for a minute 0.98 earned run average en route to an 8-0 record, including the 13-3 victory over three-time Northern Division winner

Nazareth Friday to wrap up the title.

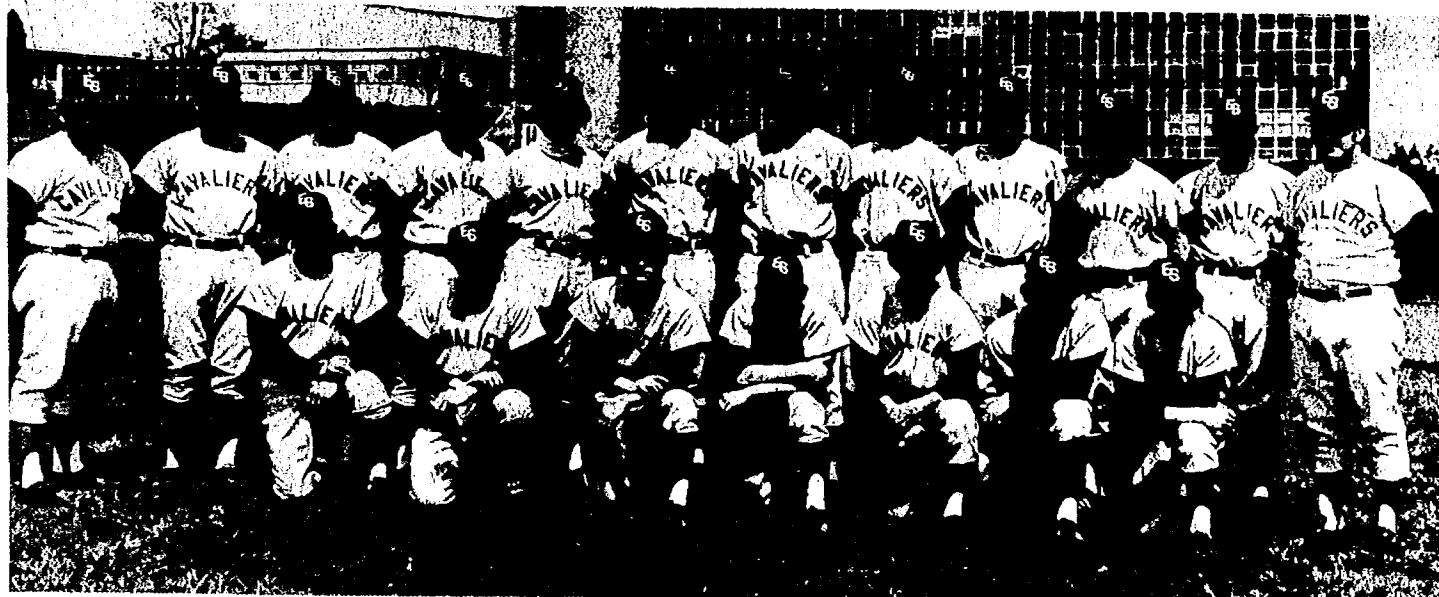

Beck has given up just 38 hits and walked only 12 men. Perhaps the most impressive statistics are the 55 strikeouts and seven complete games. Of the 17 games East Stroudsburg has played this year, its pitching staff has turned in 12 complete games.

"Beck is not overpowering," Reynolds says. "He's not real fast, but he has good control and is a thinking pitcher. His fastball and curve are adequate. Neither are overly impressive. But he's a tough competitor and he's at his best when things are tough."

Pitching has been the key for the Cavaliers, who finished 10-2 in the league and carry a 13-4 mark into the championship game.

"Good pitching and good defense have been our key," Reynolds said. "At times our hitting has been a disappointment. But when it gets going we have been hitting the ball well."

The four East Stroudsburg pitchers — Beck, Steve Martz, Dan Whittaker and Bob Staples — have a combined ERA of 1.91 in the 117 1/3 innings the Cavaliers have played this year.

If Beck should falter, Reynolds will call on Whittaker, a 6-2, 160-pound junior, in relief. Whittaker is 2-3 with a 2.22 ERA in 31 2/3 innings. He has 38 of the team's 118 strikeouts.

"Whittaker has a fine fastball and a good curve," Reynolds continued. "But he has been bothered by wildness. Two of his losses were two-hit games. But his biggest win was 3-2 over Nazareth (in the first meeting of the two teams) in eight innings." Although Whittaker, who will start at first base Friday, has allowed only 15 hits, he has allowed 29 walks. He has two complete games. East Stroudsburg's hitting attack has been less than impressive. The team carries a .248 batting average with Whittaker leading the way with a .367 average, including three doubles, one behind team leader Charlie Gallagher.

Of the 13 victories, East

Stroudsburg has won four — all league games — by one run. On the other hand it has lost only two games by one run. Saucon Valley has won the Southern Division and the league title for the last three years. But this does not bother Reynolds.

"If we go in and play our type of game and don't make mistakes, we should do all right," he said. "I feel we have been under pressure all year. After we lost (2-1) to Pleasant Valley, we couldn't lose another and the kids knew it. If we lost we could forget about winning the title. But these kids play best under pressure. It brings out the best in them."

Besides Beck and Whittaker, Reynolds will go with either Charlie DeRenzi (.381) or Gene Dickson (.156) at second base, Martz (.179) including two home runs) at shortstop and Staples (.240) at third.

The outfield will consist of Pat Boushell (.225) in left field, Charlie Gallagher (.274) in center and Kim Walck (.244) in right. Zoltan Szeredi (.189) will catch.

Although Reynolds says he knows little about Saucon Valley's personnel, he has high respect for coach Nick Dehm. "He's a good baseball man," Reynolds said. "They have always played good ball."

Both teams will get a chance to work out under the lights Thursday before Friday's game.

10 more entered in Schaefer 500

MOUNT POCONO — Ten entries announced Tuesday by Pocono International Raceway for the July 2 Schaefer 500 at Pocono boosted the total announced to date to 30.

Nine drivers were entered with one entry not naming a driver. Five of the nine drivers entered competed in all three of the United States Auto Club's "Triple Crown" events in 1971, and six of them in the inaugural Schaefer 500 event.

The Gene White Co. of Atlanta named two veteran drivers, Lloyd Ruby of Wichita Falls, Texas, and Cale Yarborough, Timmonsville, S.C., to its entries. Ruby, who will be appearing in his 13th Indianapolis 500 Saturday, and Yarborough, who will be driving his fourth Indy 500, are both assigned to Bill Daniels' GOP specials with 157 cubic inch turbocharged Ford engines.

The two drivers both competed in the 1971 Schaefer 500.

Yarborough completed only 15 laps before being forced out with a seized engine. Ruby took eighth place.

Grant King Racers, Inc., of Indianapolis entered a two car team, naming one driver. Steve Krisloff, Parsippany, N.J., who will be starting his second Indy 500, was the only driver named by King. Both cars are powered by 158 cubic inch turbocharged engines. Krisloff placed 10th in last year's Schaefer 500 and 11th in "Triple Crown" point standings.

Gordon Johncock of Hastings, Mich., a seven-year Indianapolis veteran is assigned to the Gulf McLaren special powered by a 161.7 cubic inch turbocharged Offenhauser, the same car he will drive at Indy.

Johncock competed in all three "Triple Crown" races in 1971, and his best finish came in the Schaefer 500 where he placed 20th, being forced out with a broken fuel pump after 101 laps.

Bob Harkey of Indianapolis, who finished 29th in the 1971 Schaefer 500, will be returning with the same car owner, Joe Hunt of Los Angeles. The car is powered by a 159 cubic inch turbocharged Offenhauser.

Three drivers, Lee Kunzman, Guttenberg, Iowa; Al Loquasto of Easton and Rick Muther of Laguna Beach, Calif., will all be eligible for the Mario Andretti Rookie of the Year Award.

Kunzman, who qualified for his first Indy 500 this year, is assigned to a turbocharged Offenhauser powered car entered by the Caves Buick Co. of Fresno, Calif. Loquasto will be in the Martin Guitar Special entered by Frank J. Fiore of San Carlos, Calif.

Muther is assigned to the Adams Apple Special entered by Jack Adams of Arlington, Tenn. Muther has appeared in one Indianapolis race. He placed 21st in 1971. All three cars are powered by turbocharged Offenhauser engines.

Bentley Warren of Gloucester, Mass., who placed 22nd in 1971 has been assigned to a 1967 Eagle owned by Bay State Auto Racing Corp. The car is powered by a turbocharged Offenhauser.

Heavyweight champion Joe Frazier gets in some sparring Tuesday in preparation for Thursday's title bout with Ron Stander in Omaha. (UPI Wirephoto)

NEW YORK — "Portnoy's Complaint" is faithful to what Roth wrought in one respect: full of feisty dialogue. Henry Fonda's wife, Shirley, was a stewardess when Hank met her, and she'll still be on one flight: years ago she was one of the stewardesses on the first N.Y.-Washington jet flight whose original crew is being recycled for the final flight to its permanent display — in the Smithsonian. Peter Sellers' ex, Britt Ekland, was beautiful as ever, dancing at the Casino Russe with producer Lou Adler. Stuart Whitman's a favorite for the "Lucky" Luciano gangster flick. The record business has a slight panic on. The Chicago studio RCA equipped for a million just was shuttered. No recession for fine composer Michel Legrand, he's scoring six films right now. Finally a rock-group picked an appropriate name: "Apoplexy" is the current noise at Barney Google's. Sonny Davis' take-home at Westbury Music Fair was more than $100,000. At this rate he'll be out of debt this year. How touching: Natalie Wood and Bob Wagner expect to reward next fall — so their kids didn't have to expect together when they made it (first time) can be present. Meanwhile they're living together in London. Jill St. John's latest is another rich guy, one Leonard Ross, in investments. Jill must dig Dun Bradstreet. Doctors are finally

There's no doubt about it. Doctors are finally coming to their own. They are the darlings of the talk shows, the heroes of television and the most sought-after guests at cocktail parties everywhere. The other night I lucked out and found myself seated next to my doctor at a dinner. "How much free advice do you figure you've given out tonight?" I asked. "Every professional gets it," he smiled good-naturally. "I mean how many homes without a piano does Liberace get invited to?" "But how do you survive?" I asked. "People must drive you crazy with their symptoms." "First," he said, "I divide them. I tell them I'm strictly an Ob-Gyn man. That weeds out all of the men. I re-route them to a party where an urologist is holding court or to a theater where I know an internist is in attendance. "Then, I divide the women. I listen to the hysterical ones first. The ones who have just read a Reader's Digest story which gave them three months to live. I always reassure them you lose something in the condensation. "What about the others?" "I tell them even though it is a cocktail party, I take my work quite seriously and would not presume to offer a diagnosis on a simple interview. I then invite them to come over to a corner and take their clothes off for a full professional examination." "You sound flip," I said, "but it must bug you to

Ann Landers
Motorcycles

Dear Ann Landers: Our 17-year-old daughter has been dating a 19-year-old boy for the past year. Jim is a fine young man, a good student and a careful driver. Jim announced a few days ago that he has purchased a motorcycle. Our daughter expects to ride with him. I have good reason to fear motorcycles. The sons of two close friends were nearly killed on motorcycles. A neighbor's daughter was in a motorcycle accident a few months ago and she will never walk or talk again. I told our daughter we will not allow her to ride on Jim's motorcycle and she is very upset. She assures me that Jim will handle the motorcycle with extreme caution. She also says if she is not permitted to ride with him he will drop her. I don't want to lose a lovely daughter, either on a motorcycle or through lack of communication or understanding, but I know that if I say yes my heart will be in my mouth every minute she is away from home. Do I have the right to say NO? Lavenia, Mich. Mother

Dear Mother: You do and I hope you will. The National Safety Council has plenty of chilling statistics on the appalling carnage resulting from motorcycle accidents. You have every right to be apprehensive. If Jim dumps your daughter because she had the good sense to respect her parents' wishes, he was no bargain. (P.S. To all you cycle fans who may be angered by my answer, please save your stamps. My stand is irrevocable.)

Dear Ann Landers: Please tell everybody who reads English that when they reach a wrong number THEY are inconveniencing someone — it's not the other way around. Moreover, they have no right to ask, "Who is this?" Several months ago I was the victim of a wrong number. When asked, "Who is this," I refused to say. This so angered the questioner that she called four or five times every night for months. My husband and I lost a great deal of sleep because of that woman's rudeness. The proper procedure, when one believes he has reached a wrong number, is to say, "I'm calling the Stroudsburg residence for Susan Saunders. Do I have the right number?" This does not require that the party on the other end reveal his identity. "Thank you, Ann, for performing a useful service."

Dear Backs: Most people, when they reach a wrong number, will continue to ask, "Who is this?" I suggest that the person who receives the call ANSWER the question WITH a question: Who are you calling?

Still in love

By Jean Adams

NEXT DAY: (Q.) My boy friend and I broke up three weeks ago. It was really a blow to me because just the night before we broke up I gave in to him. I honestly love him, and that's why I did it. Now when I see him he tries not to look at me, and when I say something to him he doesn't want to talk to me. I call him every day and he says every day he doesn't want to be bothered. We are both 17. We went together for six months, and that was the only night we had sex. Before that he was very good to me. We had even talked about getting married some day.

IN-BETWEEN: (Q.) My hair is too long. I want to cut it short to do anything with. All it does is hang. My friends say, "Cut some bangs." But I don't want any. My best friend says, "Part it in the middle." But it doesn't look good like that. Should I get a fall? Change Needed in Oklahoma. (Q.) I want to wig shop and try on some inexpensive fashions. This will let you know if you will look good in one or not.

SCSC extends filing date for technical researchers

HARRISBURG — The State Civil Service Commission has extended to June 1 the final filing date for applications for technical research positions as PPBS trainee and beginning and advanced level analyst.

Examinations will also be administered periodically beginning July 22 to fill nearly 50 beginning level draftsman positions in state offices. Applications are due June 21.

For the technical research positions, a written test is not required, according to Richard Rosenberry, director.

The exam consists of a rating of education and experience reported. Successful applicants will be notified in writing of their final earned rating. Annual salaries range from $7,407 to $17,839.

College graduates will qualify with various combinations of education and experience. In addition to a college transcript, applicants must submit a brief summary of the required courses, including title, basic content, date of completion and credits earned. Experience must be recorded in detail.

For beginning draftsman positions, applicants must be high school graduates who have completed courses in mathematics and mechanical drawing. Successful completion of an approved training program in drafting may be substituted.

Truck hits workman

WHITE HAVEN — A Pennsylvania Department of Transportation highway flagman is in fair condition after being struck by a PennDOT truck as it was backing up on Interstate Route 80 near White Haven Monday.

George Becker, 58, of Jim Thorpe, was injured at approximately 1:30 p.m. Monday after he was struck by the truck operated by 38-year-old Peter Burcak, of Beaver Meadows.

According to a state police spokesman from the Mount Pocono barracks Burcak did not know Becker was behind the truck which was equipped with a large sign saying, "Slow - single lane," which limited rearward vision.

Unwed mother offers advice

WICHITA, Kan. (UPI)—A young Wichita mother who abandoned her newborn baby has explained why she did it and offered some advice to other girls who might find themselves in a similar situation.

She told in an interview of the agony she suffered in fear her father, who suffered a heart ailment, might learn about her pregnancy, and about her decision to have the baby because "I couldn't have had an abortion. I couldn't think that I had done that to someone alive."

The decision to abandon the infant was not made until after the May 1 birth at which the 20-year-old mother, alone, served as her own midwife.

Will she have other children later? "I plan to have a family... I don't think anything is different."

What would she tell other young women? "I strongly recommend that if they plan to do something, they should take precautionary measures."

And to anyone else who is unmarried and pregnant, she advised: "Go to someone — an agency or someone. I think I would now."

In the interview, the woman recalled the events which led to her abandoning her baby.

"I kinda didn't accept it," she recalled of her initial realization that she was pregnant. "I didn't really start thinking about it until December."

In January, fearing that her parents would discover her pregnancy, she moved away from home into an apartment. "I kept thinking I would go away — move or something — so they would not find out because of my father's poor health." Up to the last month, she thought she would have to leave Wichita, she said.

"I still thought, though, that I could find someone to help me. I didn't know where (to go) or who to talk to."

At 7 a.m. May 1, "I was scared right off," by labor pains. "I knew I was going to have it — that I would have to go through with it."

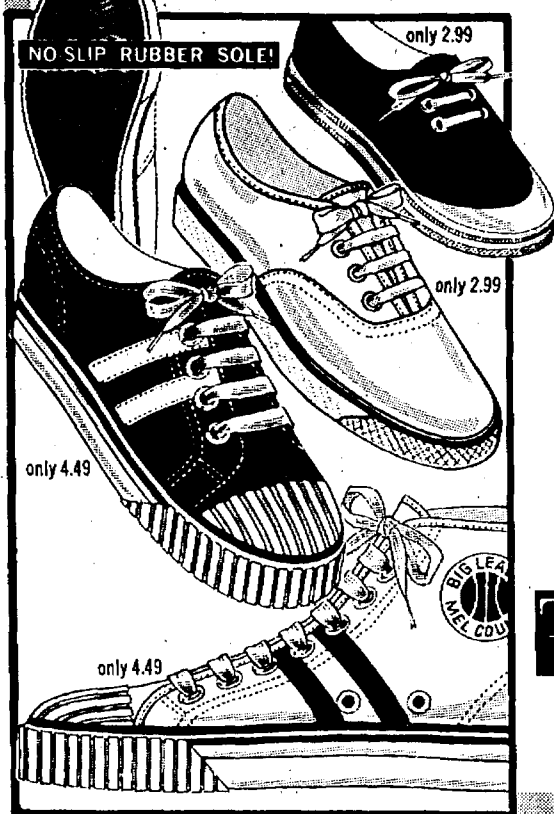

"I sterilized everything — the scissors and the string — and poured a bucket of hot, soapy water. I just waited. I prayed a lot."

At 5 o'clock that evening, she gave birth to a 6-pound, 12-ounce girl. She said she intended to leave the baby at a church but there were too many people in the area of each church she tried. "I didn't want anybody to know," she added.

"I didn't want to leave her just anywhere," she said. "I wanted to leave her where I could call someone so the baby would be found promptly."

She wavered, she said, thinking that she might keep the child, but her concern for her father's health influenced her to leave the baby near a southeast Wichita liquor store. "I just made myself do it," she said in a heavy voice.

Gun control cry will probably go unheeded again

BY RICHARD MARTIN
Dow Jones—Ottaway News

Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama, gunned down in a Maryland shopping center last Monday afternoon, had scarcely reached his hospital bed before Chicago's Mayor

Richard Daley demanded: "When in God's name is Congress going to wake up to the need to outlaw handguns?"

Others quickly took up the cry. Rev. Jesse Jackson said it's time "to demilitarize this nation. Guns are far too accessible, and those who fight to keep guns on our streets are enemies of all mankind."

Mayor John Lindsay of New York renewed his call for gun-control legislation, and so did Sen. Edward M. Kennedy. "Now is the time to enact a federal system of firearms control," said the senator.

But if the history of the past violent decade is any guide, the pleadings of gun-control advocates once again will go largely unheeded — and carnage by gun will continue to be a daily fact of American life.

Gun control has been more or less a constant issue in congress ever since President John F. Kennedy was assassinated in 1963. While Congress debated, four more public figures were killed in the next five years — Black Muslim leader Malcolm X in 1965, American Nazi leader George Lincoln Rockwell in 1967, and Rev. Martin Luther King Jr. and Sen. Robert F. Kennedy in 1968.

Meantime, with considerably less public attention, some 85,000 other American civilians died of gunshot wounds, accidental, self-inflicted or murderous.

Finally, Congress passed the gun control act of 1968, a watered-down, loophole-ridden law that curtailed the mail-order sale of most guns. Restricted imports of cheap weapons and required purchasers of guns and ammunition to provide identification.

It was the first significant federal firearms legislation since machine guns and other weapons of mass destruction came under federal control in 1934.

But if the 1968 law has had any dampening effect on the level of gun violence in America, it's hard to discern. About every two minutes someone is killed or wounded by gunfire in the U.S. Altogether more than 21,000 die annually by gunfire.

Guns figure prominently in crime. Besides some 10,500 murdered by gun last year, 80,000 Americans were injured in assaults by gunwielding assailants, and 220,000 others were robbed at gunpoint. In all, guns were used in 65 per cent of all homicides, 63 per cent of all robberies and 24 per cent of all aggravated assaults.

The trend is sharply upward. Gun murders have doubled and gun robberies have tripled nationwide since 1964, and the rates of increase are accelerating.

It seems self-evident that the reason guns are involved in so many acts of violence is that there are so many guns in so many hands. If the 1968 law keeps you from buying a mail-order gun, it certainly doesn't keep your corner gun dealer from selling you one.

If the law makes cheap foreign-made guns unavailable, it doesn't stop the flow of equally cheap guns assembled in the U.S. from foreign parts. And if the identification provision of the law would seem likely to discourage felons from buying guns, it shouldn't. Hardly anybody ever checks beyond a cursory look at a driver's license.

90 million guns in civilian hands — total is increasing

Studies done for the National Commission on Violence in the late 1960s showed that nearly half of the nation's 60 million households own one or more firearms — adding up to a grand total of some 90 million guns in civilian hands.

The supply is increasing at a rate of about 2.5 million guns a year, half of them handguns, which most authorities consider the most dangerous because they're the easiest to conceal. One new handgun is sold every 24 seconds, and it's thought a used one changes hands every two minutes.

A sizable majority of Americans favor stricter gun controls and have for years. Survey conducted for Dow Jones—Ottaway News Service on April 28, 29 and 30 by the Gallup organization involving personal interviews with a sampling of 1,542 persons, showed 79 per cent of Americans favor requiring a police permit to buy any gun.

Moreover, 43 per cent say they favor outlawing entirely the private ownership of handguns; a majority of 52 per cent, however, would oppose going that far.

Public sentiment in favor of tighter controls is nothing new. As far back as April 1938, a Gallup survey showed 84 per cent favored requiring registration of firearms.

In the past six years, four presidential commissions appointed to study crime, violence and law enforcement in the U.S. have all called for strict gun-control legislation by Congress. They have urged everything from outlawing the manufacture of handguns to the licensing of all gun owners.

But there is powerful opposition to gun controls — mainly from a remarkably vocal, well-disciplined minority consisting of gun manufacturers, sellers and sportsmen who use their weapons for hunting and target shooting, not for killing people.

This group is known collectively as the "gun lobby." The gun lobby cites a number of reasons — which many people consider quite logical and legitimate — for its stand.

"The reason gun-control laws are unpopular is because legislators know they will be buried under a mountain of mail from opponents," says Rep. Abner J. Mikva of Illinois, a long-time advocate of tougher controls. (Some of the mail is vituperative in the extreme. Rep. Mikva has a fat folder of abusive letters inspired by his speeches and proposed bans on handguns; staff members call it the "You-Commie-Jew-Bastard File." Says Mikva: "It frightens me that some of the people who write the kind of threats I've received possess handguns with which to carry out their threats.")

The National Rifle Assn., with one million registered members, but purporting to speak for 30 million gun owners, is generally regarded as the lobby's prime mover, even though the NRA isn't registered as a lobby.

Its well-oiled legislative mechanism can whip gun enthusiasts into frenzies of letter-writing activity against proposed laws.

Tougher gun laws also are opposed by the National Wildlife Federation and other conservation groups that get much of their financial support from hunter members and gun manufacturers and state hunting licenses.

What are little girls made of? The recipe is changing

BY RONA CHERRY
Dow Jones—Ottaway News

Snow White is a household drudge for six or eight freaky-looking male dwarfs.

Cinderella is another servant, and it takes a prince to take her away from the electrolux and the venetian-blind cleaning and all that.

And Sleeping Beauty wakes and lives it up happily ever after only after a prince (not Cinderella's) finds her in bed. Such are the submissive roles that folklore, and the whole children's educational process, thrust upon women. That, at least, is the way many feminists in the women's liberation movement see it.

From early childhood, these women say, children are pressured subtly or otherwise into stereotyped sex roles. Girls get dolls, tea-cups and exhortations to become nurses; boys get firetrucks, baseballs and exhortations to become doctors. And schools, the feminists say, reinforce the stereotypes.

Now, many mothers and women school-teachers who themselves reject traditional female roles — along with some male supporters — are trying to change all that.

They're focusing on alleged sexism in school curricula, on textbook content and on educational practices that limit the access of girls to some courses.

These efforts are beginning to provoke intense controvery. Many persons, male and female, are extremely sensitive to any real or imagined threat to their children's sexual identity, and these persons are by no means all closed-minded bigots.

James Malfetti, a professor of education at Columbia University who is sympathetic to the women's movement, recalls how startled he was when his basketball-playing son enrolled in a homemaking course.

"And if it raised a question in my mind, I could see other parents trying to yank him out or question his identity," Malfetti says.

Moreover, while the feminist movement can claim some substantial influence over schooling in a few places, in many others around the land women's liberation is just a phrase.

For girls in many towns, cheerleading remains the most prestigious activity, and marriage and motherhood, rather than a career outside the home, beckon in the future.

Nonetheless, things are stirring. Big-city feminists say they have received letters from all over the country, even from towns as small as Slippery Rock, Pa., population 4,949, expressing an interest in changing the schools.

Some schools have changed radically. An example is Brooklyn's private Woodward School, one of the first to try to eliminate all traces of "sexism." Woodward acted after a committee of mothers complained to the faculty that traditional sex-role attitudes were limiting opportunities for some children, especially girls.

"It's crucial that we don't limit little girls," says Andrea Ostrom, a committee member. "They should have the opportunity to do what they want."

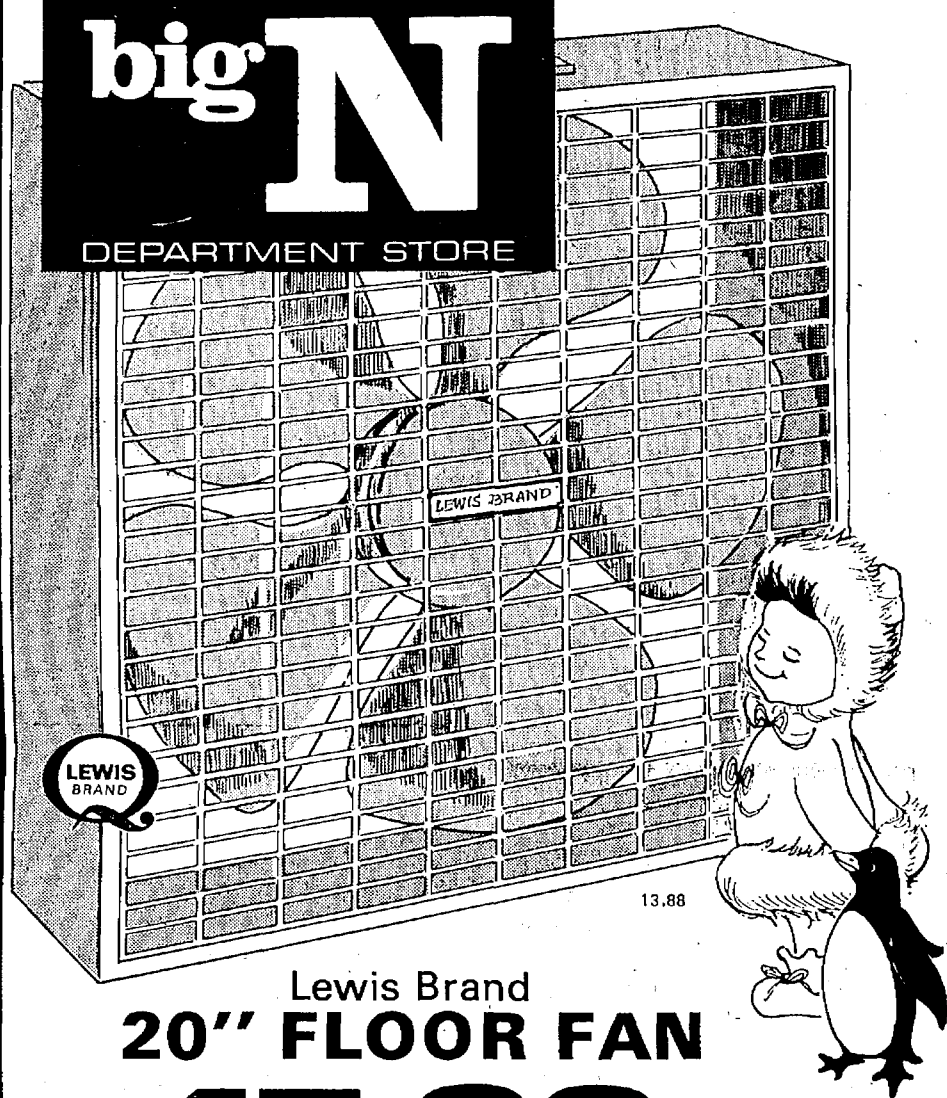

A few years ago, Woodward had two playrooms for younger children: one with dolls, where the girls tended to congregate, and one with blocks and other more-active toys, which the boys seemed to prefer.

Teachers also try not to let "sexism" in books go unchallenged. "When we discuss Cinderella, we say her sisters were ugly because of the way they behaved, and Cinderella was kind of ugly for letting herself be passive and masochistic," says Mrs. Goldstein.

Enjoy a taste of outdoor freshness
(even when you're eating indoors)

It's true that Sunbeam buns 'n rolls built their great reputation on the outdoor life they lead. Picnics and beach parties and backyard cook-outs. But let them show off that special freshness indoors, too. For lunch or supper or snacks. Anywhere, anytime, Sunbeam buns 'n rolls will spoil you for any other kind.

Five join society

EAST STROUDSBURG — The Lehigh University Chapter of the Society of Sigma Xi inducted into membership five East Stroudsburg State College faculty members.

Among the inductees were Professors Herbert Weber, physical education; Robert Schramm, chemistry; Timothy Wagner and C.S. Cheng, physics, and Franklin Buser, biology.

Also inducted was Dr. James Sorrentino, of Merrell-National Laboratories in Swiftwater.

The Society of Sigma Xi was founded in 1886 at Cornell University as an honorary research society. Nomination to membership represents scientific accomplishment and is regarded as the graduate honor equivalent to Phi Beta Kappa at the undergraduate level.

The new members will be affiliated with the ESSC Sigma Xi Club, whose membership consists of college faculty and research scientists at Merrell-National laboratories.

Notice to Bidders

Sealed bids will be received by the Pocono Township Supervisors for the purchase of one 1972 or 1973 Model Dump Truck. Specifications may be obtained from the Township Secretary at his home in Tannersville, Pa.

Each bid shall be accompanied by a certified check, cashiers check, or Money Order in the amount of $100.00 drawn in favor of Pocono Township Supervisors. The check will be retained as liquidated damages in case the successful bidder should neglect or refuse to enter into a contract in accordance with his bid. Sealed bids to be in the hands of the secretary not later than 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, June 6, 1972. Said bids will be opened and read in open meeting of the Township at the Municipal Building at 7:30 a.m. June 6, 1972.

The Pocono Township supervisors reserve the right to reject any or all bids.

Pocono Township Supervisors J. Edwin Gantzhorn, Secretary

ADVERTISEMENT

Notice is hereby given that sealed bids for the construction of a 50,000-Gallon Reservoir will be received in accordance with the law by Matamoras Municipal Authority or at the office of Buck, Sellert and Jost, Consulting Engineers, 429 Sylvan Avenue, Englewood Cliffs, New Jersey 07632. Copies thereof may be obtained at either office upon deposit of Fifty ($50.00) dollars for each set which sum will be refunded to those who place a bid or render a quotation and who return the drawings and specifications in good condition within thirty (30) days after the date on which bids are received or else the entire deposit will be forfeited.

Each proposal must be accompanied by a certified check payable to the Matamoras Municipal Authority from a reliable surety company authorized to do business in the State of Pennsylvania and satisfactory to the Matamoras Municipal Authority in an amount equal to ten (10) per cent of the Proposed Contract. The certified check will be retained to pay any damages or loss to the Matamoras Municipal Authority or the liability bond will accrue in case the successful bidder shall neglect or refuse to enter into a contract in accordance with his Proposal.

The Matamoras Municipal Authority reserves the right to consider bids for Thirty (30) days after their receipt before awarding any contract and the right is reserved to accept any bid or to reject any or all of them.

Real Estate Week

May 21-27, 1972

WHO said "Nobody reads the want ads!"? Just ask us — we're witnesses to results. Classified Dept. 421-7349.

HOW TO GO FROM WHERE YOU ARE TO WHERE YOU WANT TO BE

Distribute ecology boxes to shopping centers, golf courses and service stations. Advertisers pay the cost and provide you with a handsome profit.

No inventory to stock. No routes to run. Operate from your own home. Most distributors stay with their present jobs. Our company provides a complete training program.

If you can afford a minimum of $1,800 to invest in a gold mine of extra income, write today before your area is taken.

Male & Female Help 42

Worried about answering a blind box number ad? (because you don't know who the advertiser is?) If you are worried about answering one of these blind ads — simply do this: Place your letter of application in an envelope addressed to the box number and seal it. Then put the envelope in another envelope addressed to the Classified Dept., The Pocono Record, and enclose the names you do NOT want to receive your reply. If one of the companies (or individuals) you listed placed the ad, we will simply discard your reply. Sorry, but we cannot return your letter without violating the confidence of our advertisers.

Harris poll shows McGovern strengthens as candidate

By LOUIS HARRIS

Sen. George McGovern of South Dakota has now established himself as a formidable candidate for the White House, and is running just as strongly as Sen. Hubert Humphrey against Nixon in Presidential pairings.

In the latest Harris Survey, President Nixon is ahead of Sen. McGovern 48-41 per cent in a two-way contest. In a three-way race, Nixon leads the South Dakota Senator 40-35 per cent, with George Wallace as a third-party nominee at 17 per cent.

Sen. Hubert Humphrey runs behind President Nixon 50-42 per cent in a two-way matchup. With Wallace running as a third-party nominee, the Minnesota Senator draws closer, trailing by only 41-37 per cent, with Wallace at 16 per cent.

Although the differences in the percentages between Senators Humphrey and McGovern are not significant, the obvious moving force in the electorate today is Sen. McGovern. He has come from far back in the field to become a major contender, not only for the Democratic nomination but with a chance now to capture the White House in November. It is worth noting that at the present time a third-party candidacy by Gov. George Wallace would help both Humphrey and McGovern in their nationwide percentages against Nixon.

Here is the trend since early 1971 of a Nixon-McGovern-Wallace race, with the latest survey being conducted among a cross section of 1,385 likely voters on May 9 and 10, shortly after the President's announcement of the mining of North Vietnam harbors:

"Suppose in 1972 for President it were between Richard Nixon for the Republicans, Sen. George McGovern for the Democrats, and Gov. George Wallace as an independent. If you had to choose right now, whom would you be for?"

NIXON-McGOVERN-WALLACE TREND

August, 1971	48	33	13	6
May	47	33	11	9
April	46	36	12	5
February	45	34	12	9

Here is the trend in a direct Nixon-McGovern contest with no third-party candidates:

April	54	34	12
March	59	32	9

Just over a month ago, the South Dakota Senator appeared to be running poorly against the President. A number of political commentators predicted that if he were nominated at the July Democratic convention, McGovern would prove to be a "Barry Goldwater of the Left," referring to the weak run made by the Arizona Senator when the Republican candidate polarized the electorate in 1964. Certainly McGovern's upsurge belies any such theory.

The dramatic McGovern gain in this latest Harris Survey obscures to an extent the fact that, in the aftermath of the escalation of Vietnam hostilities, his chief opponent for the Democratic nomination, Sen. Hubert Humphrey, also makes his closest run against President Nixon in a year.

The cross section was asked: "Suppose this November, it were between Richard Nixon for the Republicans, Senator Hubert Humphrey for the Democrats, and George Wallace as an independent. If you had to choose right now, whom would you be for?"

NIXON-HUMPHREY-WALLACE TREND

In a two-way contest, here is the Nixon-Humphrey trend:

NIXON-HUMPHREY TREND

	Nixon Per cent	Humphrey Per cent	Not Sure Per cent
May, 1972	50	42	8
April	50	42	8
March	53	37	10
February	51	41	8

In both the case of Senators McGovern and Humphrey, the Democratic nominee is now showing better with George Wallace in the race as a third-party candidate then when the Democrats run alone against Nixon. At this point in time, President Nixon is picking up slightly more of the Wallace vote in a two-way contest than either of his two leading possible Democratic opponents. This is a reversal of earlier findings of the Harris Survey over the past year.

With Wallace out of the race, Nixon holds a substantial but not decisive seven to eight point lead. This means that as of the second week in May, either Humphrey or McGovern would be no farther behind than was Humphrey immediately following the 1968 Democratic convention, a gap he all-but closed by Election Day. At the moment, however, the momentum would appear to be moving with McGovern. The central question is whether he can continue his surge or will level out in the precarious position of Democratic front-runner.

Capitol opinion

Weak response to state fury

HARRISBURG (UPI) — The people of Pennsylvania are furious.

They are sick of big government, welfare fraud and public officials who threaten to bus their children into strange neighborhoods to go to school.

George Wallace has broadcast that "message" in this state and many others. George McGovern and Hubert Humphrey each are repeating it in their own way.

And the Pennsylvania legislature clearly has heard the message. But their response is weak—a frenzy of activity that only makes matters worse.

This week, the legislature answered the people's protest over welfare with an unprecedented measure that could freeze the Welfare Department into its old, archaic ways for decades to come.

The House voted to take control of all the Welfare Department's rules and regulations—some 44 pounds of documents. This is absurd and probably unconstitutional. The legislature is not equipped for this job.

Outrage against busing
But the legislators intend to go home to the people and describe this as an attempt at welfare reform.

Then, there is the public outrage against busing. The House responded with a bill that would strip the Human Relations Commission (HRC) of its power to order school desegregation.

This would not end busing. In fact, the Philadelphia and Pittsburgh schools are busing students for racial balance without HRC approval.

Instead, this would destroy the HRC. It would forbid the HRC from using its power to ease racial tensions in the schools.

But the legislators will go home and say they have answered complaints about busing.

So it goes. When the people are upset, the legislature makes a feeble stab at reform for the sheer sake of publicity. But it is rarely real reform.

When to start?
Do these legislators want real reform? "Yes," they say. "But where do we start?"

Do they believe their crazy schemes actually solve the problems of state government? No," they say. "But it is the only way to get re-elected."

The answer to this dilemma is not simple, but it is clear. These legislators have to chart a long range course for real reform and they have to take some risks at the polls to accomplish it.

Why not risk losing an election? What good is it for a legislator to keep getting re-elected if he can't accomplish anything?

The best long range solution to this problem is to totally revamp the legislature. Prohibit legislators from holding outside jobs, make them full-time lawmakers and pay them more money. Get better men at those desks.

These legislators need to be better informed about what goes on in their government. Right now, their knowledge generally is limited to what they read in the newspapers.

Talk to voters

Each legislator needs to be speaking to as many civic groups and public meetings as he can find in his home district. He needs to talk to every voter he can find. He needs to explain the issues. He needs to try to mold public discontent into meaningful protest.

The people are begging for a bigger voice in government. They cannot get it when their representatives are insulated by a lack of time, money and knowledge.

There also are ways to take the election year heat off of legislators. In the House, where the terms are only two years long, the second year is ruined by election year panic.

If the terms were longer, more work would get done. There also could be a mandatory recess between the primary and November elections when the legislators are running. This would end a lot of junk legislation.

There is a constitutional amendment sitting in the legislature that could make some of these changes.

Go ahead. Spill a little. Spills sponge right off Sears "Footlights" carpet. It's 100% nylon pile. Treated with SANI-GARD to be anti-bacterial. And you can install it yourself. Just roll it out and trim to fit. It has a cushiony foam backing, too, because we know how much time you spend in the kitchen. Sears "Footlights" carpet, in 5 designs, 15 colors.

Cushiony Foam Backing

The cushiony, rubber foam backing is deep and thick. But it's also flexible enough for you to install it yourself.

Stain Resistant and Treated with SANI-GARD

Now you can relax about spills and germs, mildew and odors. Thanks to SANI-GARD.

Almost Impossible To Wear Out

This extra-tough, tightly tufted nylon pile wears and wears, no matter how rough and tough the going gets.
